2 KILLED IN SLEEP IN FREIGHT TRAIN CRASH

Two men, a conductor and brakeman, were killed as they slept today in a crash of two freight trains just east of the Readville station on the Midland Division of the New Haven Railroad.

The caboose and four cars of a forty-eight-car train, standing motionless on a track, were telescoped by the locomotive of another freight train, as it split a switch in crossing the yards.

The dead are: Conductor William D. Murphy, thirty-eight, of No. 3908 Washington street, Forest Hills, and Brakeman John B. Davis, fifty, married, of No. 49 Tuttle street, Dorchester.

Both men were asleep in the cabooses of freight train No. OB-4, bound from New Haven for Boston, but motionless on track No. 16 while Engineer W. J. Moulton of No. 119 Alden street, Roslindale, and Fireman John Heferman of No. 97 Binney street, Brookline, were filling the detached engine at the water tank down the track.

TELESCOPES FIVE CARS.

Freight train No. NB-4, also bound from New Haven to Boston, with fifty loaded cars, rolled into the yards at a twenty-mile-an-hour speed.

According to Patrolman William L. Daniels of the Hyde Park police station, the moving freight appeared to split a switch, lurched over to track 16 and, with a crash that shook nearby sleepers into wakefulness, buried its heavy engine in the caboose of OB-4, four other cars being telescoped in turn.

Racing to his signal box, Patrol-

AMERICAN'S PRIZE AIR RACE IS GREAT SUCCESS

AIRMEN HOPPING OFF IN PRIZE FLIGHT

At top is shown the first plane to start in the race for the Boston Evening American trophies and cash prizes. It is the plane piloted by Lieutenant E. S. Beck with Lieutenant Joseph K. Barber, Jr., as observer. Below, left to right, are Captain Louis E. Boutwell, observer, with his pilot, Albert L. Edson and Captain Clarence E. Hodge, pilot, with his observer Lieutenant George E. Sprague.

FLIERS WING WAY OVER 'ENEMY' AREA IN GREAT SKY SHOW

Complete and gratifying success attended the thrilling prize flight of Massachusetts National Guard airplanes promoted today by the Boston Evening American.

The weather was ideal for flying. The crowds were large. The enthusiasm was spontaneous and maintained, taking its root in the historic significance of the day. Best of all, the six planes entered made their several reconnaissances and returned to the base at the East Boston Airport without mishap.

The flight was arranged by this newspaper as its contribution to the celebration of the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Incidentally, it was a symbol of the change in times; a reminder that in the future great battles probably will be fought in the air.

It was a "sealed order" flight. The aviators obtained their directions and their "objectives" by lot. Prizes were given for military competence, speed, nerve and comprehensiveness of observation. The prizes, offered by this newspaper, were awarded by Governor Alvan T. Fuller at the Airport as follows:

First prize, plane piloted by Lieutenant C. E. Wright, with Captain D. E. Currier, as observe, $200.

Second prize, Lieutenant Albert L.

CROWD OF 150,000 SEES BUNKER HILL PARADE

Through streets massed with cheering humanity 20,000 men and women marched today in a mammoth military and civic parade, forming a striking climax to Charlestown's observance of the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Soldiers, sailors, fraternal organizations in full regalia, women's auxiliaries in gayly colored costumes, swinging along between buildings in holiday attire formed a colorful spectacle.

It was estimated that more than 150,000 persons jammed the sidewalks on the line of march, which started on 43d street and after pass-

5 CHILDREN, WOMAN HURT IN PICNIC CRASH

A woman and five children were injured, some of them seriously, when an Elevated bus in which they were bound for a Sunday school picnic, struck a telegraph pole at Hancock and Granite streets, Quincy, today.

The injured, most of whom were cut by flying glass, were treated at McGilvray's drug store, across the street, and three were later removed to the Quincy Hospital.

Those taken to the hospital are: Frances Slater, ten, of No. 56 Green street, Jamaica Plain; Dena Klynson, thirteen, of No. 97 Green street, Jamaica Plain, and Mrs. Isabel Rogers, No. 17 Wilpark street, Jamaica Plain.

The other victims, who were given first aid in the drug store, were Gertrude Ryan, thirteen, No. 34 Green street; Winifred Nelligan, thirteen, No. 32 Green street, and Jessie Wilkins, ten, No. 8 Garfield street, all Jamaica Plain.

SMASHES INTO POLE.

The bus was operated by Motorman Joseph L. Litchfield, and was one of eight, all owned by the Elevated, carrying a party of women and Sunday School children from the Central Congregational Church, Jamaica Plain, to a picnic at Whitman's Pond, Weymouth.

As the bus pulled into Quincy Square a machine operated by Charles McGilvary, prominent Quincy attorney, approached from the opposite direction. Litchfield, to avoid the McGilvray car, swung short to the left, but before he could

LA FOLLETTE 'MORE SERIOUSLY' ILL TODAY

Washington, June 17 (A.P.).—Increased concern over the condition of Senator LaFollette, who is fighting a severe cold with complications at his home here, was apparent today among those in attendance.

A statement issued at his office expressed hope for recovery, but said his condition had become "somewhat more serious." Members of the family declined to add to the announcement, but it was understood that after a turn for the better he had taken to his bed again and had found much difficulty in breathing because of development of bronchial asthma.

The statement from his office said:

"Senator LaFollette's physician stated today that although his condition was somewhat more serious than before, he was more than holding his own and that there was every hope of his ultimate recovery."

BOSTON ROARS GOODBYE TO M'MILLAN SHIP

Boston shrieked farewell today to Donald B. MacMillan and his band of Arctic explorers.

Wearing the mantles of modern Vikings bent on wresting its secrets from the frozen North, the explorers sailed from the Charlestown Navy Yard as a leading feature of the 150th anniversary celebration of the Battle of Bunker Hill.

Crowded on the docks of the navy yard, 5,000 persons, including distinguished representatives of the army, navy, nation, State and city, gave MacMillan vociferous acclaim.

THOUSANDS THRONG CHARLESTOWN FOR BUNKER HILL PARADE

3,000 BOY SCOUTS IN PAGEANT

ing through the heart of the district was reviewed at City square before disbanding.

Headed by Sergeant Martin J. Flynn, World War veteran, as marshal, with Lieutenant Mark E. Smith, Jr., as his chief of staff, the long line wound in and out through the narrow streets of Charlestown for more than two hours.

There were nine divisions, made up of regular army and navy troops, National Guardsmen, veterans, the Ancient and Honorable Artillery Company and similar full dress military organizations, fraternal societies including 3000 Elks of Greater Boston, schoolboy and church cadets, and representatives and floats from various commercial ones.

BOY SCOUTS IN PAGEANT.

The parade followed a parade and pageant by Boy Scouts at Sullivan Square Playground, a pageant by school children at Bunker Hill Monument, and patriotic exercises at the monument at which addresses were made by Governor Fuller and Mayor Curley.

At the monument exercises Mayor Curley was introduced by Luke D. Mullen, chairman of the Bunker Hill Day Celebration Committee, who presented to the Mayor a solid gold medal in behalf of the citizens of Charlestown and the Legion of Honor men.

The medal bore the city's seal in platinum, below which was a representation of the monument with a wreath.

Hugh Harkins, seven-year-old Charlestown schoolboy, his head just clearing the top of the speaker's stand, read the Declaration of Independence, being congratulated afterward by Governor Fuller and Mayor Curley.

Judge David O. Lourie of the Superior Court gave a patriotic address, and speeches were also made by the Rev. Charles W. Lord, S.J., president of Georgetown University; W. Monroe Trotter, publisher of the Guardian; John J. Shachnovey, tenor, sang the Star Spangled Banner and invocation was given by Rev. Thomas R. McCoy.

Shortly before the Boy Scouts' pageant, the crowd at the Sullivan Square playground enjoying the Midway, was stampeded when a gasoline tank at a hot dog stand blew up and ignited the woodwork.

Despite the efforts of F. H. Banfield of Haverhill and Harold Jewett the stand was burned to the ground, and, during the excitement, Mrs. Banfield was robbed. The day's receipts amounting to between $25 and $30.

Frightened by the flames many in the crowd started to rush from the spot, but police officers arrived and succeeded in calming their fears. The fire department was not called.

MANY TROOPS IN LINE.

The Boy Scouts parade, scheduled to begin at ten o'clock, got under way from Thompson's Square half an hour later, with troops from Wellesley, Malden, Brookline, Jamaica Plain, Milton, Charlestown, Boston, East Boston, South Boston, Dorchester and representatives from Plymouth in line.

At the playgrounds the Scouts gave tableaux representing the formation of the organization, the coming of the white men, start of settlers for the West, the landing of British soldiers, Paul Revere, slavery, Lincoln and the American boy of the twentieth century.

They then demonstrated tower building, tent pitching and other Scout performances and finally concluded with a pledge of allegiance to the American flag.

The exercises at the monument, which started at noon, were broadcast direct by station WNAC, the Shepard stores.

The children from all the schools of Charlestown participated in games and gave a patriotic pageant prior to the speeches.

A flag drill was given by the pupils of St. Catherine's School, under the direction of Mrs. James Monagle. The spot where Warren fell was decorated by the graduating class of the Warren School, directed by Julia S. Sullivan, who, as chairman of the children's celebration, is in charge of the entire affair.

A chorus, "Bunker Hill Day," was rendered under the direction of Mrs. Celia M. Banton, author of the composer. Then came the formation of 1775 by the children of Bunker Hill School, directed by Miss Mary F. Duvel, Miss Adah F. Whitney and Hugh H. O. Regan.

The school children then spelled, in living formation, the names of Bunker Hill heroes, the Harvard School, directed by Miss Margaret Carroll, spelling Putnam; Prescott School, directed by Misses Dorothy McColgan and Agnes Lynch, spelled Prescott, and Warren was spelled by Warren School children, directed by Misses Dunbar, Kathryn Duff, Mary V. Kane and Julia Corcoran.

TWINS BEDECK STATUE.

The "Spirit of 1775" was portrayed by the pupils of St. Francis de Sales School, directed by Miss Agnes Lynch.

The Prescott statue was decorated by two sets of twins under the direction of Miss Julia E. Sullivan. The twins were Margaret and Mary Mahoney from the first grade of the Prescott school, and Arthur and Richard Brady from the second grade.

The formation of a living flag was given by the children of St. Mary's School directed by Miss Irene Haggerty, and the formation of 1925 by the Frothingham school, directed by Miss Hazel Howard.

The forty-eight states were represented by girls of the Charlestown High School, directed by Marion Gilman, and the pageant concluded with the salute of the flag and singing of the "Star Spangled Banner."

The executive committee in charge consisted of Julia S. Sullivan, general chairman, assisted by Margaret M. O'Neil and Agnes E. Daly, with Helen R. Bagley as secretary. Remarks were made by School Committeemen Edward M. Sullivan and William G. O'Hare.

Somerville has an official celebration today, with tableaux at the Old Powder House and at Prospect Hill tower, the latter to commemorate the raising of the first Stars and Stripes. In the afternoon more tableaux, children's sports and folk dancing were conducted on Central Hill, and there were ball games at Lincoln Park and Dilboy Park Field.

Fireworks and a vaudeville show at Dilboy Field and band concerts at Dilboy Field, Lincoln Park and Saxton C. Foss Park are scheduled for this evening.

In Quincy this evening the boys of the parochial school of St. John's Church will stage a sham battle on the church lawn. The Elks will celebrate with fireworks and a style show in the evening.

Unofficial celebrations are scheduled for many other cities and towns of Greater Boston.

WARM HAND CLASP AT ARCTIC MEAL

'BIRTH OF U. S.,' CURLEY'S TOPIC

Mayor Curley, speaking at the Bunker Hill Monument today, at the exercises commemorating the 150th anniversary of the Battle of Bunker Hill, said, in part, as follows:

"We are assembled this day upon the soil made sacred by the sacrifice of the men through whose unhaunted courage the fruition of the ideals of eighteen centuries of struggle for the priceless heritage of liberty became a reality.

"One hundred and fifty years ago this historic hill was red with the blood of the common people and the military forces representing entrenched power through the theory of Divine Right. The soldiers of the King, it is true, achieved a pyrrhic victory in the capture of the hill, but the Colonists acquired a morale which, despite the superior forces and resources of the enemy, was never impaired. The fruits of the victory, in addition, unified the people of the thirteen colonies in the resolution to resist oppression and to conduct their own affairs until freedom established. The blood of the martyrs who died on these hillsides was the seed of the American Republic which it cures today.

"This Republic was founded and fashioned by the common people in older and more heroic days; it was preserved by them in the crucial hours of the rebellion under the leadership and independence might be established of the great liberator, Abraham Lincoln, and the integrity and security of this land in the days to come rest upon the faith and courage of the common people.

"We, today, in recalling the struggle of 150 years ago on this hill, we but commemorate the awakening of the democratic Samson, the common people, who on that day brought into the world the American Republic and baptized it in their blood, for though Lexington preceded Bunker Hill and the Declaration of Independence came later, it was here and then that the American free man found his soul, learned his own strength and saw the fabled invincibility of the King's mercenaries vanish in the smoke of the farmer's musket.

"The rock and foundation upon which this Republic and its civilization stand are the common people; the man with the hoe, the man that guides the plowshare, the man who fells the forest and delves in the mine, the man who faces the fire-place and hammers the anvil, the worker and the woman who keeps the home and rocks the cradle and whose labor and productivity make happiness possible and human life palatable and purposeful."

GUNS BOOM IN FAREWELL TO M'MILLAN

Thousands at Navy Yard Give Arctic Explorer Great Sendoff

while sirens shrieked, whistles shrilled, big guns boomed and airplane motors roared above.

The last person to bid goodbye to MacMillan was Blanche Ring, noted actress, with the "No, No, Nanette" company. She said it with a big hug—and then the Peary cast off.

"We will be back in Boston by September 22," shouted MacMillan, above the din and through the mist carried from an exhibition by two airboats. Then the voice was lost in the bedlam.

BROADCASTS SPEECH.

As the Peary, bearing the naval contingent of the exploration party, turned in the stream, Commander MacMillan broadcast an address to the world from the deck.

Gathered on the famous old frigate Constitution, and waving as enthusiastically as any ten-year-old on the navy yard docks as the Peary sailed, were Assistant Secretary of the Navy Theodore Douglas Robinson, Governor Fuller, Lieutenant-Governor Cox, Mayor Curley, General Brewster, Senator Butler, Senator Gillett, State Senator Wells and Congressman Douglas and Gallivan.

These distinguished men and others were guests of honor.

As the Peary's propellers churned swifter and she headed out of the channel, six navy destroyers and a fleet of Eagle boats, seaplanes and airplanes from the Squantum naval air station and the East Boston Airport formed an escort.

In a three-ship formation of Army planes escorting the Peary, the lead plane, piloted by Lieut. R. J. Brown of the East Boston Airport, carried James B. Williams, Jr., editor of the Boston Evening American as a passenger.

The other two planes were manned by Lieut. Burt C. Martin with Lieut. Edward Newhall as observer, and by Lieut. Frank Crowley with Lieut. George H. Lewis as observer.

The Eagle boats and planes accompanied the explorers' craft into open water beyond Hyannis Harbor, but the escort continued on and will escort the band to Wiscasset, Me., where the Bowdoin, MacMillan's veteran Arctic craft, will be picked up.

The sailing came at the end of a morning crowded with work and excitement and at the end of a period of many days' feting of the Arctic leader and his men.

FAREWELL AT BREAKFAST.

Today's final farewell table was set at the Copley Plaza, where Governor Fuller, on behalf of the Commonwealth, gave a joint breakfast to MacMillan and to the members of the National Bunker Hill Day committee appointed to take part in the 150th anniversary observance.

Speeches were barred at the informal breakfast, but all present extended to MacMillan their hearty good wishes for success in his hunt for the lost Amundsen and in his search for a new continent hidden in the Polar ice.

At the head table these present included, in addition to the Governor and Lieutenant-Governor, the Rev. Charles W. Lyons, S. J., president of Georgetown University; ex-Secretary of State Charles Evans Hughes, Senator Foss of Ohio, former Governor Eugene N. Foss, Major Clifford D. Ham, representing the Governor's Council and Isaac T. Mann of West Virginia, one of President Coolidge's appointees to the National Bunker Hill Day committee.

AT THE NAVY YARD.

Immediately following the breakfast MacMillan hastened to the Navy Yard to put the last touches on preparations for the dash on the first leg.

The yard had been thrown open to the public at 10 o'clock and thousands had taken advantage of the opportunity to satisfy their curiosity prior to the sendoff.

All officers and men of the naval base not detailed for official assignments were stationed to greet the public and answer all questions.

At 11:15 Assistant Secretary of the Navy Robinson arrived at the yard and was accorded full honors with a gun salute. Secretary Robinson drove to the yard from the Squantum air station.

Fifteen minutes later, the guests of honor, headed by Governor Fuller, arrived, and while guns boomed out the Governor's salute, they were escorted on board the Constitution, where addresses were made.

OFF FOR WISCASSET.

MacMillan's brief address of five minutes was the last and as the noon hour struck, he uttered his final word, stepped aboard the Peary —and the din started, with the crew throwing off the lines in the midst of the bedlam.

The Peary will arrive at Wiscasset tomorrow and will be greeted by MacMillan and the entire official state of Maine.

Alongside the gallant Bowdoin the Peary will tie up, and then the enthusiasm of Maine will be let loose until Saturday for the idolization of the explorers, the feature event of the celebration being a monster banquet Friday night at Southport, Me., given by Governor Brewster.

A second farewell will be taken on Saturday when the Peary, carrying the naval contingent, with Captain George Steele of Boston as commander, and the Bowdoin, commanded by MacMillan, and carrying the scientific men, steam out of Wiscasset on the second leg of the expedition.

Lashed on the deck of the Peary will be two of the three amphibian planes that will be utilized in charting the Northland. The third plane will be stowed away aboard the Bowdoin.

The Bowdoin, in addition to MacMillan, will carry Ralph Robinson, chief assistant of Merrimac; John Jaynes, chief engineer, of Somerville; Alfred Beharrie, radio operator, of South Manchester, Ct.; Benjamin H. Rizg, chief topographer of the United States Coast and Geodetic Survey; Dr. Walter N. Koelz, United States Bureau of Fisheries, and Jacob G. Gaver, photographer of the Geographic Society.

Aboard the Peary are Dr. Leo F. Davidoff, Harvard Medical School; Captain Steele, Pilot Eugene F. Bauer, Chief Boatswain Earl B. Reber, Aviation Pilot Floyd Bennett and Andrew S. Nold, Aviation Mechanist's Mate N. P. Sorrenson, Machinist's Mate Charles F. Rochesville, Chief Aerographer Albert Francis, Commander Eugene F. MacDonald, in charge of radio; Dean Publico, Chief Engineer, and P. D. Davidson and Maynard Owen William of the National Geographic Society.

"Every Man Will Do His Best," Says MacMillan in Farewell Message

Donald B. MacMillan on his departure from Boston today left the following farewell message to the people of Boston through the Boston Evening American:

DONALD B. MacMILLAN.

I WISH to thank all my good friends in the city of Boston for their interest in my Arctic work, for their generous contributions toward the equipment of the expedition, for their good will and hearty God speed.

"You may be assured that every man will do his very best to accomplish what we have set our hearts upon doing—exploration of the great unknown area, a scientific study of the fauna and flora, and a possible rescue of Amundsen and his men.

"If all goes well expect us back about September 20th."

11 False Alarms Are Rung by 'Celebrators'

Members of the Boston Fire Department celebrated the advent of Bunker Hill Day by being worked almost to the point of exhaustion in responding to a score of false alarms, bonfires and fourteen alarms for legitimate fires.

During the eight-hour period between 7 p. m. and 3 a. m. eleven false alarms were turned in by persons "celebrating" the "Night Before." A majority of these came from Roxbury and Charlestown.

The firemen were called to extinguish ten bonfires built by celebrators. In addition there was a three-alarm fire at Jeffries Point, East Boston, and a two-alarm fire at the Ogden & Thompson Hay and Grain Company plant at No. 361 North Beacon street, Brighton, where the loss was $10,000.

FULLER LAUDS HEROES OF '75

No man ever has achieved anything worthwhile by advancing his own welfare by the betrayal of the people he served, Governor Alvan T. Fuller declared in his speech at the Bunker Hill celebration today.

The Governor said the lessons to be learned from events of the Revolution take us back along the only highway that leads to those things which are for the advancement of the many in contrast with the paths of those who seek only advancement of self.

He said:

"In every age and in every land where human rights have gone forward in keeping with the progress of government by the people, there has been a return to history around which some event has taken place which stands out as a worthy achievement in the age-old struggle for liberty and justice. So, today we return to Charlestown and Bunker Hill.

STORY OF SACRIFICE.

"One hundred and fifty years ago the first organized battle of the Revolutionary War was fought in this historic part of old Boston. A century and a half ago in yonder harbor three rode at anchor the British men-of-war. Around Boston were 10,000 troops of the British King. About 5,000 of these took part in the battle. Against these trained troops were 2,000 green troops of the Colonies. Twice the troops of the King came on repulsed. The third time they succeeded in dislodging the loyal defenders who had by this time about run out of ammunition.

"While this battle was technically a victory for the British, it was a decisive battle for this new republic about to begin its history.

"The story of the Revolutionary War that followed Lexington, Concord and Bunker Hill is the story of sacrifice and brilliant achievement by a determined people.

"To me it is a privilege to return to Charlestown and to take part in this anniversary observance, for I was born almost within the shadow of Bunker Hill and here I spent my boyhood."

Curley Places Wreath at Lafayette Mall

In memory of Marquis De Lafayette, the great French patriot, who laid the cornerstone of Bunker Hill monument, one hundred years ago today, Mayor Curley placed a huge wreath upon the bas-relief of the Frenchman on Lafayette Mall, Boston Common, today.

The wreath was accepted by J. C. J. Flamand, French consul, who thanked the Mayor for bestowing such an honor on so noted a son of France.

"Without the assistance of Lafayette in 1775, he who gave his voice and purse to the colonies, their efforts would have been useless," declared the Mayor as he laid the wreath upon the bas-relief. "On behalf of the citizens of Boston today we honor the memory of this great Frenchman, this lover of liberty and this great apostle of free government."

Present at the brief ceremony were Chairman James B. Shea, Deputy Commissioner William F. Long, Standish Wilcox, secretary to the Mayor, and about 100 spectators, including Daniel J. Curley, a kin.

The wreath was of large calla leaves, bridesmaid roses and maiden hair ferns, the colors of France were on the right of the wreath and the red, white and blue on the left.

OSSIPEE SPEED-TRAPPER FINED AS FAKE DOCTOR

Ossipee, N. H., June 17—Constable Bartley Carleton of speed-trap fame pleading guilty to the charges of practising medicine without a license was fined $25 and costs and in addition, has promised the court not to practice medicine in the State again, until he has passed the proper examinations. In view of the promise the court suspended sentence.

Carleton, ten days ago, set up his speed trap and arrested a large number of Massachusetts autoists who were taken before a nearby magistrate and were released on payment of $11.60 each as a fine and costs.

RHODE ISLAND TROOPER IS KILLED IN CRASH

Wakefield, R. I., June 17 (A.P.)—Trooper John Weber of the state Rhode Island mounted police force was fatally hurt when his motorcycle collided with an automobile on the Boston Post road. He died on the way to the South County Cottage Hospital.

The machine was operated by Joseph R. Umstead of Souderton, Pa., a travelling salesman, who was en route to Westerly. Umstead was held on a charge of manslaughter, pending trial next Monday.

Detroit, Mich., June 17.—Automobiles outnumbered telephones in the United States by the ratio of nearly 10 to 8, according to A. W. Frye, an address here.

$50,000 FUND IS PRESENTED HARVARD

A gift of $50,000 to Harvard University as a fund, the income of which shall be used by the Harvard Infantile Paralysis Commission, has been made by Charles F. Dutch, C. Freeman Glean and John H. Henry as trustees under the will of the late George E. Henry of Winchester.

Under the will the trustees have discretion to dispose of the sum to such charitable purposes as they might think proper. The trustees chose the Harvard Infantile Paralysis Commission because of its leadership in this country in the study of the cause and treatment of the affliction from which a member of Mr. Henry's family suffered.

apply the brakes the heavy bus crashed into the pole.

The machine did not overturn, but the children were badly frightened and their screams were mingled with the clatter of breaking glass and the grinding of wood-work.

Emergency calls for help were turned in, and in the meantime the injured children, who were practically all cut about the face by glass, were taken to the McGilvray drug store.

Mrs. George H. Corliss of No. 771 Hancock street, Wollaston, a graduate nurse, who was passing in her machine, administered first aid to Gertrude Ryan, Winifred Nelligan and Jessie Wilkins.

Dr. Israel Liddstein treated the other three victims and then ordered their removal to the hospital.

WILL BUILD LIGHTHOUSE IF SHARK GOD CONSENTS

Honlulu, Hawaii, June 17.—Officials of the United States Lighthouse Service here have a task of almost barcularen proportions in store for them this Summer in the establishment of an automatic light on the bleak rock of Kaula.

So far as known, only one white man has been on this rock, which is about 550 feet high at its greatest elevation. The Lighthouse Service will rely mainly on the natives to carry out the project.

A native legend relates that a shark god lives in a huge cave below the rock. Before the natives will trust themselves in the water surrounding it, they consult the shark god. If they find that he is favorably inclined, they are then not afraid to leap into the water and swim about the place.

CONNECTICUT COLLEGE FACULTY GET DEGREES

New London, Ct., June 17 (A.P.)—For the first time in its history, Connecticut College for Women awarded three honorary degrees, that of master of arts to members of its own faculty.

They were William Bauer and Frederick Weld, associate professors of music, and Miss Avie W. Sherer, assistant professor of fine arts.

The class of 1925, numbering sixty-nine, was graduated. The commencement speaker was Professor James T. Shotwell of Columbia University.

Two Silver Vases Stolen

Franklin, N. H., June 17.—Rev. John E. Finen, pastor of St. Paul's Catholic Church, reported to City Marshal Manchester that two valuable silver vases had been stolen from the church.

HUGHES FLAYS BIGOTS AND RACE FOES

Mentions No Names, but Turns Guns on Narrow-Minded in Faneuil Address

Naming no names, but asserting that the country must "guard against destructive forces through the world which involve the name of liberty, but which seek to establish the dictatorship of a class," Charles Evans Hughes, former Secretary of State, attacked the forces of darkness today in Faneuil Hall.

Appearing as the principal speaker at the annual meeting of the Bunker Hill Monument Association, the former Secretary cited as dangers facing the United States, the decline of patriotism and the spread of radicalism and bigotry.

OFFICERS ELECTED.

The address was in connection with literary exercises commemorating the Bunker Hill battle and laying of the Bunker Hill Monument cornerstone.

At the business session, the Rev. Paul Revere Frothingham was elected president, succeeding the late Attorney Arthur Lord. Former Secretary Hughes, together with President Coolidge and Vice-President Dawes were made honorary members.

A new policy of admitting members was decided upon and Governor Fuller, Lieutenant-Governor Allen, Councillor Charles L. Burrill, Edward P. Sanford and Wellington Wells, president of the Senate, were taken into active membership.

MUST BE WORTHY.

Former Secretary Hughes, while recognizing the existence of forms of disintegration, declared that standards of integrity in business and political life are higher than ever, the press is freer and the people as a brave as their Bunker Hill ancestors.

"When we examine the records of the past, the long story of revolt against tyranny, the disorder, the privations, the helplessness of multitudes and the mistakes of centuries, we may well rejoice at our own inheritance," he said. "The men of Bunker Hill made possible this heritage. Let us preserve it. It is not for us to make America, but to be worthy of her."

Then, while an exaggerated nationalism threatens both the peace of the world and the security of those who foster it, the decline of patriotism, the loss of the thrall of the heroic, the lessening of the self-sacrificing ardor which makes devotion to home, to state, to country the first obligation and the loftiest privilege, would spell such a failure in vitality, such a surrender to anarchy and tyranny, always to be found in some quarter awaiting opportunity, that each would speedily wither at the root and society so saved would not be worth the saving.

"Democracy is not a theory; it is the life of free men who keep the fires of liberty brightly burning on their own hearths."

RAPS BIGOT, RACIAL FOE.

This country, he said, must guard against destructive forces through the world which "invoke the name of liberty," but which are seeking to establish the dictatorship of a class.

Homogeneity of race here is impossible, Mr. Hughes said, but "true Americanism is of the spirit, not of any race or strain. The bigoted citizen, however boastful of long American descent, who would deny political privilege to his fellow citizen because of race or creed, is exhibiting not his Americanism, but his lack of it."

Touching on the need for local self-government, he said, "The right of each community to be its own magistrate in the affairs which appropriately belong to that community is of the essence of self-government, and in that rock, which the passion for uniformity must be controlled. When we lose the right to be different we lose the privilege to be free.

"The cure for the ills of democracy is not more democracy, but more intelligence. We cannot enjoy the blessings of liberty without the freedom of knowledge."

Mr. Hughes said in conclusion: "To the world we must exhibit the capacity for self-government we may hope to secure our peace by being reasonable and just in our dealings abroad."

KLAN GETS PERMIT TO PARADE IN WASHINGTON

Washington, June 17.—The Ku Klux Klan today was granted a permit by the police department to have a monster parade here August 8. Announcement was made the permit was issued with the understanding none of the khanamen was to wear a mask, otherwise they may dress as they please.

It is understood 200,000 klansmen will take part in the parade, which will be a feature of the national convention.

1 Chinese, 1 European

50,000,000 He Didn't Own

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1925, by the Star Company.

THE CHINESE learn from our civilization, and, much to the annoyance of Europeans, they now demand the life of one European for every native Chinese slain by Europeans.

Western nations, with their own courts established on Chinese soil, their special diplomatic and other quarters, have been using their own judgment in China.

WHEN THEY thought things were doing badly, they sent soldiers and machine guns ashore, and when it was over, it was often necessary to pick up a few dead Chinese.

The atmosphere will change and perhaps clear up, if the Chinese live up to their statement that every Chinaman shot down must have his European mate to accompany him to the happy hunting grounds.

ONE LADY, tired of life, killed herself in New York and left all her money to her first husband, whom she had divorced. She cut off her real husband without a penny, her last letter saying how kind the first husband had been to her.

WARNING TO wives as their eyes turn towards Paris: Sometimes you are very well off and do not realize it.

WOMAN'S strange nature, too deep for man, appears in the last wishes of another American woman, a suicide in Paris. The lady, unmarried, left orders to have a large bouquet of roses put in her arms as she lay dead, ordered an ebony coffin with silver handles, and wished to be buried in "my rose-colored satin gown, and to have on my earrings and bracelets and silver purse; I want my hair pinned up and arranged gracefully."

THE RASHLY importunate lady, who had lost all her taste for her American compatriots, wrote: "I want no American doctors, nor any Americans, for that matter, to touch me." and she forbade all religious services at her funeral.

That's the strange part. If you don't believe you are going to rise again, exactly as you want to sleep in death, what's the use of putting on your rose-colored satin gown and your earrings. You don't dress for the worms.

Nobody understands the female heart, not even a Frenchman.

BOOKS written in Germany about the war would fill a shelf five miles long. That would interest President Eliot with his five-foot shelf.

How much do you suppose the five miles of war books will be condensed by historical writers 200 years from now?

The entire five miles of books might be boiled down to this: "In 1914 the Germans, foolishly living under the rule of a Kaiser, allowed themselves to be led into a war. It seemed disastrous at first, but the losses were soon more than made up by the prosperity of the German Republic."

INVESTIGATORS for the United States government allege that an able young man named Livermore sold 50,000,000 bushels of wheat that he didn't own.

This selling, "dumping wheat on the market," of course, knocked down the price. It was "just one gamble among many" for the plunger selling short. It was something different for the farmers.

IT IS SAID that the government will take "firm, regulatory measures." That's pleasing news, if those measures amount to anything, and they probably won't.

IF A MAN can sell 50,000,000 bushels of something he doesn't own, never saw, and make perhaps $25,000,000 in a few days, he has more influence sometimes than the farmer that has actually raised one thousand bushels of wheat by the sweat of his brow.

THE MEXICAN question agitates this country, and bothered the stock speculators for a while yesterday. There is no need for agitation. We are not going to have any quarrel with the Mexicans. The people of the United States have only the friendliest feeling for Mexico.

Americans feel that they are fortunate in having good neighbors, north and south, and they don't intend to do anything to jeopardize that situation.

THOSE THAT resent Calles' rejoinder to the United States' note should bear in mind that what Calles said to us is about what we should have said to Calles had we received a note of complaint such as he received. It isn't a question about the justness of the complaint. Nations don't like to be criticized.

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND HONORED AT YALE

Prominent Women Take Part in Girls' College Commencement

Radcliffe and Boston College held the centre of the educational stage in Boston, today.

At the same time, the 224th commencement exercises of Yale University were conducted at New Haven. Yale conferred 1,005 degrees on course and 15 honorary degrees, or over 200 more degrees than ever before.

At Radcliffe, the senior class diplomas and degrees were given at the annual commencement exercises in Sanders Theatre, while this afternoon the largest class in the history of Boston College attended class day exercises at University Heights, Chestnut Hill.

Led by the Radcliffe alumnae and followed by officials of the college, the graduating class was escorted to the Sanders Theatre shortly before noon.

The alumnae procession was marshalled by Mrs. Robert Blackall of Milton. Mrs. John Vaughn, '00, was marshal for the '25 year class, and Mrs. William Norcross of Wellesley Hills for the class of 1915. The senior procession was headed by Miss Frances Ellen Cummings of Washington, Miss Sybil Stone of Belmont, president of the senior class; Miss Elsie Waldow of Buffalo, N. Y., vice-president; Miss Frances Burrage of Middlebury, Vt., secretary, and Miss Bertha Wight, of Atlantic, treasurer, followed as officers of the class.

OTHER OFFICERS.

The other red-tassel officers then preceded the main procession. They are Miss Alice Johnson of Cambridge, college song leader; Miss Ruth Ayres of Waban, chairman of class night; Miss Dorothy Priest, chairman of invitations; Miss Margaret Donaldson of Elk Ridge, Md., chairman of baccalaureate; Miss Alice Joyce of Brookline, historian; Miss Madeleine Van Hall of Roslindale, lawyer; Miss Vera Micheles of London, giver of gifts; Miss Mary Gardner of Portland, Me., class poet; Miss Laura Sweet of Allston, permanent secretary, and Miss Elizabeth Neal of Brookline, editor of the Radcliffe 1925 year-book.

The dignitaries were led by Radcliffe's president emeritus, LeBaron Russell Briggs, with the Commencement chaplain, Rev. Edward Cummings of Boston, who is the uncle of the class marshal.

Miss Ada Comstock, president, made the prize award announcements, and President Marion Edwards Park of Bryn Mawr delivered the Commencement address.

SENIOR PARADE.

General assembly at the Heights took place at 2 o'clock, when the seniors gathered in caps and gowns at the Assembly Hall, St. Mary's Building. Headed by a band, the seniors marched to Alumni Field, where a flag-raising took place.

The junior marshals of the procession were Edward Mullowney, Arthur Johnson, John Dooley, J. P. Murphy, Edward Flynn, William Finn, Robert N. Daley and Lawrence McCarthy.

President Reilly delivered the mantle oration and presented his mantle of senior presidency to Edward Mullowney, who has been selected by the juniors as president for next year. The class history was read by Bernard J. Hawley of Unionville, Ct. James Ahearn of Lynn read the prophecy and John F. Gray recited the class poem. The tower oration was delivered by William J. Doyle. Activities at the field were concluded with the singing of "Hail Alma Mater."

The procession then marched to the terrace of the new Science Building, where the class tree was dedicated, Charles O. Monahan of Newton delivering the oration.

Two Brothers Win Highest Honors at Yale University

New Haven, Ct., June 17.—Highest scholastic honors in two schools of Yale University have been won by brothers for the first time in Yale's history. They are William Bunnell Norton, who was graduated today by the college, and Richard Copeland Norton, who was graduated from the school of medicine. To the former was awarded the Warren Memorial High Scholarship prize for the academician who ranks highest, and his brother took the Campbell gold medal for highest rank in medical school examinations.

Corwin C. Roach of Cleveland, O., another graduate, received honorable mention in award of the Warren scholarship.

The Nortons prepared for Yale at Mount Hermon School with which their father, Stephen Allen Norton, is connected.

One woman was among the 45 students graduated from the Yale school of medicine. In the class four received M. D. cum laude.

The Keis prize for the best thesis went to David H. Shelling of Hartford, Ct.; the Perkins prize was equally divided between Harry C. Card of Seattle, Wash., and Charles S. Saikowitz of New Haven; the Ramsey memorial scholarship established by women, to Edward T. Calhoun of New Haven, and Ives scholarship prize was reawarded to Richard C. Buckley, an instructor in the school.

Fifteen honorary degrees were awarded at the graduation exercises today. Among the notables to receive honorary degrees were John Hayes Hammond, noted mining engineer; Dr. S. Parkes Cadman of Brooklyn, whose talks at the Bedford Y. M. C. A. in Brooklyn have made him known to a radio audience of millions; Gifford Pinchot, Governor of Pennsylvania, and Dr. John Staige Davis, noted surgeon of Johns Hopkins.

Those who received honorary degrees were:

Francis Cole Pratt, master of arts, trustee of the Sheffield Scientific School; Arthur B. Morrill, master of arts, prominent Connecticut educator, and for more than 30 years principal of the Connecticut State Norman School; Edward Stephen Harkness, master of arts, prominent New York railroad magnate and philanthropist; Dr. John Staige Davis, master of arts, associate professor of clinical surgery at Johns Hopkins; Dr. S. Parkes Cadman, doctor of divinity, prominent Brooklyn divine; Dr. John M. Moore, doctor of divinity, bishop of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South; Professor John Matthews Manly, doctor of letters, professor of English at Chicago University; Agnes Repplier, doctor of letters, poet, story writer and lecturer of Philadelphia; Dr. Donald Dexter Van Slyke, doctor of science, research chemist of the Rockefeller Institute; Dr. Robert Andrews Millikan, doctor of science, president of the California Institute of Technology; Dr. Ernest Martin Hopkins, doctor of laws, president of Dartmouth College; John Hays Hammond, doctor of laws, prominent mining engineer; Gifford Pinchot, doctor of laws, Governor of Pennsylvania; Owen D. Young, doctor of laws, chairman of the board of directors of the General Electric Company; James Rockwell Sheffield, doctor of laws, American Ambassador to Mexico.

Edison to Aid Defense in 'Monkey' Case

This is what happens when a locomotive, traveling at a 20-mile-an-hour clip, smashes its way through five motionless freight cars. A Boston Evening American photographer got the picture soon after the tragic crash at Readville today. Note how the caboose, in which two sleeping trainmen were killed, is piled astride the locomotive. Inset is of Jerry Cummins of the Readville fire department, who dug the bodies of the victims from the wreckage.

man Daniels notified Captain Robert E. Grant of the crash, just as the police captain was lining up his men for roll call. Then Daniels sounded a fire alarm.

Breaking roll call, Captain Grant shot a large detail of men to the scene under Sergeants Ryan and Keyes, who took the police flivver, the police patrol and all cars available near the station.

Hospital ambulances, doctors, nurses and priests were notified and those summoned hastened to the train yards.

Medical assistance was not needed, however, for the sleeping conductor and brakeman were so badly crushed that they were not even recognizable.

At first it was feared that more of the OB-4 crew had been killed in the crash that also wrecked the locomotive of NB-4, from which Engineer John Carver of Poquonock Bridge, Providence, and Fireman Bert Colden of No. 37 Brown Hill street, Providence, jumped when they saw a crash was inevitable.

Firemen attached to Engine 48, Ladder 28 and Engine 49 of Readville, under District Chiefs Henry Krake and John Murray, who were changing watches, worked heroically with the police and the Readville car shops wrecking crew to haul the debris from the bodies.

The wreck tied up the two lines through the yards for many hours.

ARTHUR C. BENSON, AUTHOR, DIES IN ENGLAND

London, June 17 (Universal Cable). A. C. Benson, famous author, died shortly after midnight today at Cambridge.

Arthur Christopher Benson, master of Magdalene College, Cambridge, since 1915, and son of the late Archbishop of Canterbury, was the author of many religious and philosophical works as well as numerous poetic and biographical works. He was born April 24, 1862. He was a brother of Edward Frederic Benson, also an author.

Harvard Banner Makes Police Climb in Vain

After police officers made repeated unsuccessful attempts to "shinny" up the municipal flag pole atop the Sumner statue in Harvard square, Cambridge, a professional steeple-jack was called on to remove a huge crimson banner which proclaimed to the world the Harvard battle cry, "We Will Beat Yale."

Whoever fastened the flag to the pole did such a good job that it was impossible to unfasten it without climbing to the top. A wooden block wedged in the pulley wheel prevented police from hauling the flag down by means of the halyards.

RAIN MAY FOLLOW PERFECT HOLIDAY

Today's perfect holiday weather may be followed by more rain on Thursday. Forecaster Loveland predicts warmer weather for tonight and Thursday, and says that rain is falling in the western area of the Great Lakes Region, including Chicago and Duluth, today, and that this rain may hit Boston Thursday.

Today's temperatures in Boston are abnormally low. Starting with a minimum of 56 degrees at 5 a. m. today the mercury had risen only to 64 at 10 a. m., despite cloudless skies. The light west to northwest breezes blowing over Boston today will probably give way to south winds tonight.

LEGION DEDICATES NEW INDIANA HEADQUARTERS

Indianapolis, June 17 (A.P.).—Pledging the American Legion to "carry on as those whose memory is here perpetuated would wish us to," Colonel James A. Brain, national commander, today accepted as a gift from the people of Indiana the new National Headquarters buildings, the first unit in Indiana's war memorial. Colonel Brain's address ceremony followed a speech by Governor Ed Jackson. "You may depend upon us of the American Legion to prove fully worthy of the favor you do us by the service we render," Colonel Brain declared.

SOCIETY AND 'PIER' IN ROW

Narragansett Pier, June 17.—The residents of the exclusive Summer colony of this resort aren't going to mingle with the proletariat of the town who live here all the year round—not by a couple of high board fences and a court action or two.

Society must be exclusive when it goes promenading along the Pier boardwalk, so in order to maintain this superiority complex, the members of the summer colony have carpenters at work today putting up a wooden barrier on the northern end of the boardwalk to replace the lattice work barrier which some angry townsfolks tore down some days ago.

SUITS PLANNED.

The summer visitors, numbered among whom are many society leaders from New York, are members of an organization known as the Narragansett Improvement Association.

It was this association which had the lattice work barrier erected, cutting off a large section of the boardwalk for the exclusive use of the summer visitors. This so angered the townsfolks that four or five men visited the boardwalk during the night and demolished the fence.

The Narragansett Town Council, also piqued over the attitude of the Summer visitors, adopted a resolution condemning the erection of the barrier. In addition, the town fathers directed the town clerk to determine what legal steps could be taken to keep the boardwalk open to the public and plans for court action were discussed.

The ill-feeling in the town had little effect on the officers of the Improvement Association, however, and a force of carpenters are at work erecting a new fence.

GRANT DUCHESS OF WESTMINSTER DIVORCE

London, June 17 (A.P.)—The Duchess of Westminster today was granted a divorce from the Duke of Westminster.

The Duchess of Westminster alleged cruelty. She was formerly Violet Mary Geraldine Rowley, daughter of Sir William Nelson, and married the Duke in 1920.

The Duke of Westminster is the owner of large estates. He is forty-six years old, and fought in the Boer War and the World War.

Firemen Overcome Fighting East Boston Blaze; Near-by Plants Menaced

A 200-foot wharf at Jeffries Point, East Boston, on which was the three-story plant of the Booth Fisheries Company, was destroyed in a spectacular fire of unknown origin early today.

Three firemen were injured while fighting the fire and several were overcome by smoke.

The fire for a time threatened the Jeffries Point Yacht Club which adjoins the pier, and the police boat Watchman and members of the club, at considerable risk, rescued 40 yachts and power boats, tied up in the basin adjoining the burning pier.

Plants of the International Glue Company and the Freeman Fish Company also were endangered by the flames.

The two city fire boats, Engines 44 and 31, were forced to bear the brunt of the fire-fighting when the pier and the building had burned to such an extent that there was danger of the firemen being carried through the pier floor into the water beneath.

It was a three-alarm fire and on the third alarm Fire Chief Daniel Sennott arrived on the scene and took active charge of the situation.

In the Booth Fisheries plant were stored a large quantity of smoked fish, boxes and machinery. The plant had not been in operation for some time, but a large surplus of fish was carried in storage.

Patrolman Arthur Kerwin of the Hanover street station, a member of the yacht club, and three friends, Gustav Swenson, Daniel Walker and Henry Driscoll, were playing pool in the clubhouse when they discovered the fire. Owing to poor telephone service it was ten minutes before they could summon firemen.

While fighting the fire from the land side, Hoseman Robert Callahan of Engine No. 7, who lives at No. 68 Bowdoin street, South Boston, was struck on the head with a hose coupling. He was removed to the East Boston Relief Hospital, where the extent of his injuries have not been determined.

Later he was removed to the City Hospital, where it is feared his skull is fractured.

Hoseman Joseph S. Ring of No. 218 Eighth street, South Boston, also a member of Engine No. 7, suffered a severe cut on the left hand from falling glass. The cut was stitched at the East Boston Relief Hospital.

Ladderman John Pomeroy of Ladder No. 18 was severely cut about the left hand, but refused hospital treatment and continued fighting the fire.

395 DEGREES AWARDED AT BROWN

Providence, June 17.—Seven honorary degrees were conferred at Brown University today. Degrees of doctor of divinity were awarded to Rev. James M. Stifler of Evanston, Ill.; Rev. Joseph Leishman Peacock, president of Shaw University, Raleigh, N. C., and to Rev. Thomas Burgess of New York, secretary of the Protestant Episcopal Church, in charge of work among the foreign-born.

John Hessin Clarke, Cleveland, former justice of the United States Supreme Court, and Professor George Lyman Kittredge, professor of English at Harvard, were awarded degrees of doctor of laws. Albert Easton White, professor and director of engineering research at the University of Michigan, received a doctor of science degree and Margaret Bingham Stillwell of Providence, curator of the Annmary Brown Memorial Library, received an A. M. degree.

INVENTOR READY TO TESTIFY

Counsel for Accused "Delighted" by News; May Call Governor of State

Dayton, Tenn., June 17 (Universal).—Thomas A. Edison, noted inventor and scientist, whose genius has given to the world the talking machine, the moving picture and many other inventions, has offered to come to Dayton to testify in behalf of young John Thomas Scopes.

That the defense will accept the aged inventor's proposal is indicated by Dr. John R. Neal, senior counsel for Scopes, who added:

"We are delighted to have Mr. Edison's distinguished assistance. The fashion in which the great minds of America are offering assistance to Scopes is, in my opinion, one of the most significant factors of our cause."

Professor Walter White, superintendent of schools of Rhea County and Scopes' official prosecutor, has written Governor Austin Peay, filing formal application with him to testify. It is not at all certain, however, that the Governor will conform with the request.

A dispatch from Nashville indicated that he did not intend to appear at the trial as a witness unless ordered to do so by court order.

Under Tennessee law the chief executive of the State does not have to respond to subpoenas.

Unitarians to Back Scopes in His Evolution Trial

New York, June 17.—John Thomas Scopes, the Tennessee teacher facing trial in that State for teaching the theory of evolution in contravention of the State's anti-evolution law, will have the support of the Unitarian Laymen's League when he faces his accusers.

This became known today with the announcement that Charles H. Strong, president of the league, together with a noted lawyer, would attend the trial and perhaps ask leave to intervene in Scopes' behalf.

Bainbridge Colby and Dudley Field Malone, Scopes' New York attorneys, today refused to discuss the preparation of the case. There are so many ramifications appearing from day to day that the attorneys have agreed not to talk until later conferences.

SOVIET TO ABOLISH PRISON OF HORRORS

Moscow, June 17 (A.P.)—The Solovetsky Monastery—that desolate and forbidding prison camp on Solovetsky Island, in the frozen White Sea, which has been the terror of political offenders under the Soviet regime—will soon become but an echo of the past. On recommendation of the State political police, the council of people's comissars has decided to abolish the notorious prison, which houses several hundred social revolutionists and Anarchists. On August 1 these prisoners will be interned in other places.

FIVE NAVAL CAPTAINS PROMOTED TO ADMIRALS

Washington, June 17 (A.P.)—Promotion to the rank of rear admiral was announced today for Captains Thomas Jones Senn, Richard Henry Leigh, George William Laws, George Calvin Day and Luke McNamee.

Captain J. K. Robison, who approved the leasing of the naval oil reserves, and who has been holding the rank of temporary rear admiral, was not included in the list of those advanced.

U. S. SIGNS PACT TO BAN GAS AND GERMS IN WAR

Geneva, June 17 (A.P.)—The American delegates today signed the protocol outlawing poison gas and bacteriological warfare at the closing session of the international conference for the limitation of traffic in arms and munitions.

BUSES TO REPLACE CARS ON SPRING HILL LINE

MEXICO LAUDS HEARST VIEWS ON POLICY

Calles Bending Every Effort to Hold Agrarians in Check During Crisis

Mexico City, June 17.—The policy of William Randolph Hearst, as outlined in his dispatch to the Hearst newspapers, regarding President Calles' reply to the statement of Secretary of State Kellogg, as translated here, has won high approval. The United States Chamber of Commerce, at its dinner Friday, will voice the same sentiments.

It is realized here that President Calles is straining every effort to keep the Agrarian elements in check. He has issued specific orders to disarm them and to afford every protection. Foreigners, particularly Americans, do not understand why there should be any reference to "protection of lives."

The populace cannot be induced to take the matter seriously, and believe that the situation will adjust itself. All agree that the Kellogg statement comes at a time when it is uncalled for. It is admitted that President Calles has made greater progress in a few months than any previous President in years.

More Than 600 Canines Out For Charity Show Prizes

Betty Alden

MORE THAN SIX HUNDRED ARISTOcratic canines out for cups and prizes appeared today at the J. Randolph Coolidge estate in Brookline for sweet charity's sake. Mrs. David Wagstaff came over from Tuxedo Park, New York, to judge Chow Chows; William Prescott Wolcott of Readville passed on points of Terriers—Irish, Airedales, Bedlington and Welch, and Arnold Lawson of Boston was arbiter of Bulldog-ish claims for supremacy.

IT WAS the annual Bench Show of the Ladies' Dog Club, attracted many noted dog fanciers, and benefited that heart-moving charity, the Children's Hospital. Mrs. Larz Anderson of Weld, Brookline, holds honorary place within the club, and prizes galore were offered for every sort of dog under the doggish sun.

GEORGE S. WEST, JR., and Homer Gage, Jr., those prominent owners of both dogs and horses, offered Airedale prizes. Mrs. Nathaniel Emmons, whose husband's bullterriers, "Sea Salter," "Ring Bolt" and "Bimbo" were entered, gave prizes for the bull classes.

MRS. DONALD GORDON of South Lincoln had two cash prizes up to be awarded certain foxterriers who filled the judge's requirements, and Mrs. Frederick S. Whitwell (now abroad) signified her interest in the sport side of the show by a prize of money for the best Brussels Griffons.

HOMER GAGE appeared again in the prize list with his two offers for giant wirehaired and toy wirehaired Pinschers while Mr. and Mrs. Bayard Tuckerman's prize money went to Sealyham terriers, likewise that of Mrs. Bayard Warren.

MANY SPONSORS there were of importance and significance. Mrs. Frederick S. Mead, Mrs. H. Parker Whittington, Mrs. Francis B. Crowninshield, Mrs. Harold Jefferson Coolidge, Jr., Mrs. George von L. Meyer, Jr., Mrs. Gordon Abbott and Mrs. Richard S. Russell were a few.

EACH MATRON is a lively participant in whatever charity benefits their chief care, the Children's Hospital. The Dog Club has long and honorable record, proceeds from the annual show going always to a worthy cause. Mrs. E. H. Seagrave, Miss Jean G. Hinkle, Mrs. C. E. Jeffrey, Jr., and others guide the club's destinies.

Mrs. Charles Pelham Curtis, Jr., an ardent worker for the Children's Hospital, is much interested in today's Dog Show at the J. Randolph Coolidge estate in Brookline, which benefits the hospital. The show is the annual affair of the Ladies' Dog Club, and has a smart backing.

OLD SOL shone down on Hasty Pudding men yesterday to the number of thirty-one as they entertained sisters, mothers, sweethearts and fathers for their annual midday spread at the hospitable and newly redecorated clubhouse out in Cambridge.

THE "HASTY PUDDING SPREAD" is always the high light of Class Day festivities for the mid-day, and provides a lively interlude of luncheon and dancing between the morning's exercises and the afternoon's stadium affair.

AN INNOVATION this year was the afternoon tea, from five to seven, with the omnipresent dancing, to which the younger set flocked with unabated enthusiasm. Local young men entertaining were Clark Hodder, of golf fame; Russell Dewart, son of the Rev. William H. Dewart of the Old North Church, and Mrs. Dewart.

W. SCOTT BLANCHARD, whose marriage to Miss Elizabeth Percival antedated his graduation by about a year, was a host; also George P. Baker, Jr., Thomas D. Blake, Philip W. Chase, son of Mr. and Mrs. Philip P. Chase (Anna Wigglesworth) and Merrill Garcelon of Newton.

MORRISON MILLS of Houghton, Michigan, was chairman in charge. Ranlet Miner of Rochester, New York; W. B. Pringle of California, John H. Ricketson from Pittsburgh, Merrill L. Stout, P. T. Putnam, both Gothamites.

VERY SIMPLE and unostentatious, but of utmost import as regards family background and Boston's social tradition was the marriage yesterday of Miss Gertrude Hunnewell and Malcolm Donald, Harvard, '99, out in St. Andrew's Church in Wellesley.

THE bride, daughter of the Henry S. Hunnewells of Boston and Wellesley, was unattended, and Mr. Donald likewise dispensed with the usual attending staff of ushers and best man. The Rev. John J. Callan read the marriage lines and Mr. Hunnewell gave his daughter in marriage.

ONLY very close friends and relatives were of the small company in the church. The bride, dispensing with the wedding finery of satin and tulle, wore a most becoming frock of taupe chiffon handpainted in flower motif and topped with a wide garden hat in matching tones.

MR. AND MRS. DONALD are sailing for Europe for their wedding journey, and on their return, toward Autumn, will live out in Milton. Mr. Donald has a son and daughter, Miss Barbara Donald and Alexander Donald. His first wife, who died some years ago, was a daughter of Moorfield Storey.

HIS CLUBS are the Tennis and Racquet, the Exchange and the Porcellian of Harvard College. His bride is a Sewing Circle member and belongs to those exclusive and representative feminine organizations, the Chilton and Vincent Club. Mrs. Matthew Bartlett and Miss Mary Hunnewell are sisters.

MUSICAL SHOW STARS GUESTS AT CIRCUS

Principals and Chorus of 3 Boston Comedies Guests of Sells-Floto Organization

The three reigning musical comedy companies of Boston were guests of the Sells-Floto circus yesterday—that is, groups of principals and members of the chorus of "No, No, Nanette," "Rose-Marie" and "Topsy and Eva," piled into automobiles and crowded all the streets leading to Andrew Square. Nothing was omitted—not even the side show, where Louise Groody of "No, No, Nanette" found herself fascinated by the snake den and Sam Ash of "Rose-Marie" almost caught himself joining in the chorus when the Hawaiian choristers with their funny neck pieces started their contribution to the smaller tent.

In the big show, Josephine Whittell, of "No, No, Nanette," squirmed and suffered during the sensational wild animal acts, and the Duncan Sisters—Rosetta and Vivian—applauded wildly at every number.

It was an outing for the show folk of three theatres, with peanuts and red lemonade, although Wellington Cross of the "Nanette" party warned everybody against unknown liquids.

The party was arranged by N. J. Shelton, press agent of the Sells-Floto circus, while the lovely and spirited girls of the three down town shows were chaperoned by Charles Emerson Cook and Robert M. Evans.

During the performance, Clyde McArdle, announcer extraordinary, described things fully and efficiently for WNAC. The circus will again be broadcast by Mr. McArdle this evening.

STAGE RECALLS WOMAN MEMBER OF COMMONS

London, June 17 (A.P.)—The Daily Express says that Mrs. Hilton Philipson, who was the first woman after Lady Astor to sit in the House of Commons, is returning next week to the stage, where she was long a popular favorite under the name Mabel Russell. The paper does not suggest that she is retiring from Parliament or how she proposes to fill both the theatrical and political roles.

JUNE 15th-20th

NEW ENGLAND DIVISION WEEK

OUR HISTORY

The business was founded by George Huntington Hartford, a native of Augusta, Me., in 1859, in a small store in New York. Ten years later, Collis P. Huntington and Leland Stanford joined the Union Pacific with the Central Pacific, making a direct railroad line from the Atlantic to the Pacific; and it was then that the founder, later the first president of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co., foresaw a chain of stores which eventually should reach from coast to coast, and determined on the name for the company.

EXECUTIVES

One of the basic policies of the company is promotion within the organization and every executive position today is filled by men who have come up through the ranks.

EMPLOYEES

The management has recently announced a plan whereby employees after a certain term of service may share in the profits of the company through ownership of its stock, which they will be enabled to acquire by a liberal partial-payment plan. Thus every employee may become a part owner in the world's largest cash business.

TERRITORY

The A. & P. "red front" stores in the New England States, together with those in the upper and eastern district of New York state, come under the New England division, which operates warehouses in Boston, Springfield, Providence, Portland and Albany.

MANUFACTURING PLANTS

In addition, the company owns factories and canneries at Brooklyn and Brockport, N. Y.; Felton, Del., and West Bend, Wis., whose products are canned fruits and vegetables, cocoa, chocolate, macaroni, condensed and evaporated milk, candy, peanut butter, baking powder, ketchup, chili sauce, extracts, cereals, and many others.

The company also has cheese-packing and storage plants at Cuba, N. Y., and at Green Bay, Wis., and three salmon fisheries and canneries in Alaska. At West Bend, Wis., the company owns the largest single evaporated milk condensery in the world.

Low Prices—Guaranteed Quality

FOREIGN OFFICES

An office is maintained in London as a headquarters for buyers who travel up and down the continent to procure imported foods and delicacies for the A. & P. stores. The company is one of the largest importers of coffee and maintains its own offices in Santos, Brazil, and Medellin, Colombia. Ten per cent. of all the tea imported into the United States is sold over the A. & P. counters. It maintains offices in San Francisco to obtain the finest fruit packed in the choicest fruit-growing districts.

SAVINGS TO CONSUMERS

Through the ownership of all these plants and its direct connection in foreign fields the company has been enabled to cut the cost of foods sold over its counters. Savings thus made by consumers have been the dominant factor in the steady expansion of the business.

Through enormous purchasing power; control of plantations and factories; employment of experts; up-to-date methods of merchandising, supported by honest business dealing, it has for 65 years and still is saving money for every one of its patrons.

OUR POLICY

It is the policy of the Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Co. to contribute in every possible way to the business life of the communities in which it operates. The NEW ENGLAND DIVISION alone deposits in over 500 local banks; it is one of the largest, if not the largest rent and tax payer in NEW ENGLAND; one of the largest employers of NEW ENGLAND wage-earners; it purchases a great many millions of dollars' worth of NEW ENGLAND grown and NEW ENGLAND manufactured products yearly; it expends vast sums for maintenance of stores, warehouses and equipment in hundreds of NEW ENGLAND cities and towns. In short, it is the policy of the NEW ENGLAND DIVISION of The Great Atlantic & Pacific Tea Company to SUPPORT NEW ENGLAND to the fullest possible extent.

FAIMAN TO BARE $100,000 GERM DEATH PLOT

Prosecution Nears End of Its Evidence in the Shepherd Case; Nurse Testifies

Chicago, June 17 (A.P.).—Today will see the end of the State's case against William Darling Shepherd, said Joseph Savage, Assistant State's Attorney, shortly before court opened.

"I can safely say the State has proved Shepherd had a motive for slaying William N. McClintock, his millionaire foster son, and today we will try to establish that he actually did," said Savage.

"Faiman will be our last witness, and if the jury believes him we will obtain Shepherd's conviction."

Charles C. Faiman, proprietor of the small National University of Sciences of Chicago, was indicted with Shepherd, after he testified that for a promise of $100,000 he taught Shepherd how to kill the rich youth and supplied live typhoid germs for the deed.

Court opened with Miss Marie Hall, a nurse, who attended McClintock, the first witness.

She said she observed nothing unusual at the Shepherd home and that Shepherd appeared as would the father of an ill son.

Miss Hall testified also that Miss Isabelle Pope, fiancee of "Billy," was excluded from the sick room in the final stages of the youth's illness upon orders of the doctors. The nurse admitted she administered hypodermic injections, thereby accounting for three punctures in young McClintock's arm.

DONOVAN ORDERS ALL SEIZED RUM DESTROYED

Washington, June 17(Universal).—A new drive has been started by the Department of Justice and the Treasury Department to destroy the vast stores of confiscated liquor that for a year have been overflowing government warehouses. Assistant Attorney-General Donovan has personally taken charge and has directed United States marshals responsible for the stored liquor to hasten its destruction. The move started last Summer when former Attorney-General Stone ordered Federal marshals to destroy all liquor as soon as it had served its purpose as evidence before the court.

State to Insist Monkey Law Is Legal

Winchester, Tenn., June 17 (A.P.).—The validity of the Tennessee law prohibiting the teaching of evolution in public schools is the principal question involved in the trial at Dayton on July 10 of John T. Scopes, A. T. Stewart, Attorney-General of the Eighteenth Judicial District, said today.

The legal phase is about to be lost sight of, Stewart said, asserting, however, that it would be the purpose of the State to insist that the law is constitutional, and that the State Legislature was within its province in the passage of such an act.

MAN SUES FOR RING GIVEN TO GIRL

Suit to recover a diamond engagement ring and other betrothal gifts of jewelry was filed in Middlesex Superior Court at Cambridge by John Sprizza of Boston. Sprizza, in the bill in equity, claims that Miss Lillian Cutrone of Cambridge became engaged to him on Christmas Day, last year. At that time, on condition that she marry him, he states he presented her with a diamond engagement ring, a cameo ring, bracelet, gold watch, pin, pendant and other articles of jewelry.

On St. Patrick's Day, March 17, 1925, he states, Miss Cutrone without reason broke the engagement. He states he asked the return of the jewelry, but was refused.

Sprizza asks the court to restrain the girl from selling, transferring or disposing of any of his gifts and that she be ordered to return the jewelry to him. The bill is returnable at the equity session in Boston, June 22.

1200 CONVERTS CONFIRMED BY CARDINAL

Impressive Ceremony Is Held Today at Cathedral of the Holy Cross

Cardinal O'Connell administered the Sacrament of Confirmation to 1,200 converts to the Catholic faith today at the Cathedral of the Holy Cross. The converts were from the parishes of the Boston archdiocese.

The sponsor for the men converts was Dr. John Dixwell of Cambridge, and for the women, Mrs. Natalie Taylor Calloman of the Cathedral parish.

Cardinal O'Connell was assisted by Rev. William B. Finigan, rector of the cathedral, who also delivered instructions from the pulpit before the sacrament and Rev. George P. O'Conor, director of the Catholic Charities.

Assisting the converts to the altar were Rev. Neil A. Cronin and Rev. John F. Wall. Rev. Barry M. O'Connor was master of ceremonies. The confirmation mass was said by Rev. William A. Dacey.

The ushers were Jerome O'Neil, head usher and John Kerwin, Joseph McDonald, Walter Murphy and James Deery.

ADDRESED BY CARDINAL.

Cardinal O'Connell addressed those confirmed, saying in part:

"Face life with confidence. Bear the difficulties of your state in life. Life is life, do what we will, and even though we live in a solitary desert, we cannot escape life's temptations.

"There is danger of mind, body and soul. There is a certain liberty which is really only license. The only way to enjoy life is as sons of God. Have courage to go into the great battle of life. Go away consoled in your hearts.

"God has a special way of watching over you. Go and fight the fight of life. Victory brings you the eternal possession of God."

WHITNEY LEADS IN NEW JERSEY PRIMARY

Newark, N. J., June 17 (A.P.).—The lead of Arthur Whitney for the Republican nomination for Governor was increased to 22,276 when all but 546 of 2,776 election districts had reported today.

APPLY TORCH TO TOWN IN MINE WAR

Strikers Aid Police in Saving Woman From Masked Incendiaries

Glace Bay, N. S., June 17 (I.N.S.).—Incendiaries applied the torch in the mining town of Reserve, in the heart of the Cape Breton coal strike zone, and today several buildings were in ruins. The powder magazine at Reserve was fired.

The home of Don McNeil, a coal company stableman, was destroyed. The house was owned by the company.

Relatives of Mrs. McNeil, who attempted to save the furniture, were seized by masked men. Chief of Police Daniel Martin, with the aid of striking miners, drove off the masked men and saved the furniture.

The torch was applied to the warehouse, bank head and corporation store at Reserve. United Mine Workers' patrols extinguished all fires.

The Hub trestle was set afire and was partially destroyed. The lamp cabin at Reserve was also set on fire.

FALL RIVER POLICE BAFFLED BY PAY THEFT

Fall River, June 17.—A pair of nervy and accomplished cashier-window thieves are under suspicion by the police as perpetrators of the $3,000 theft from the office of City Treasurer Eugene J. Cote. Despite every effort city officials confessed their failure to trace the money or any of the $30,000 in checks, payment on which was stopped.

Harlan W. Littlefield, a clerk in the city treasurer's office, was called to the telephone by a man claiming to be a telephone company tester and requested to test a line in a distant part of the office. While he left the office unwatched, the box containing the cash and checks was abstracted.

NEW BEDFORD LAWYER GUILTY OF $5,500 THEFT

New Bedford, June 17.—Edward T. Bannon, former member of the Bristol county bar, several times candidate for mayor of New Bedford, was found guilty of larceny from George B. Schumm, in two counts of $3,500 and $2,000, and was sentenced to State prison for from three to five years.

Judge Dubuque allowed a motion for a stay of execution while exceptions are being prepared, and Bannon was ordered to furnish surety in the sum of $5,000. Mr. Bannon stated this could be done, but not today, and revoking the sentence Judge Dubuque continued the case for disposition until Friday noon.

HAZING VICTIM RESTS QUIETLY AT HOSPITAL

John Alden, assistant manager and clerk of the Babson Park Club House at Wellesley, victim of a hazing party by students at the Babson Institute in Wellesley, was reported as comfortable at the Wiswall Sanatorium, Wellesley. He is suffering from a nervous breakdown and concussion.

Mrs. Alden, who rushed here from her home in Pennsylvania, after being informed of her son's condition, visited the sanatorium, but did not indicate that any court action would be taken against the students who intended to give Alden a "ducking" in a tub of cold water. Alden suffered the concussion, it was reported, by tripping over a telephone wire.

PAROLED YOUTH SEIZED AT GUN POINT AS BURGLAR

Fitchburg, June 17.—Joseph B. Melanson, twenty-one, recently paroled from Concord Reformatory, was captured early today at gun-point in the tailor shop of William Lukoski, No. 110 Fairmount street, by Patrolmen Alfred Pouture and Emil Berndt. Melanson was piling up cloth and clothing for removal, police charge. They say he entered the shop by smashing a window in the poolroom of Alexander Therrein, No. 116 Fairmount street. Melanson in the local court on December 11, 1922, was convicted of assault with a dangerous weapon on Michael McGrath and sentenced to Concord.

SISTERS ARE BRIDES IN MEDFORD DOUBLE WEDDING

Medford, June 17.—The Misses Laura W. Gale and Hilda L. Gale, daughters of Mrs. Edith H. Gale of No. 27 Oakland street, Medford Centre, were brides at a double wedding ceremony at the First Baptist Church, Medford Centre.

Miss Laura W. Gale was married to Walter R. Guthrie of Fall River, son of John Guthrie of Weymouth and formerly of this city. Miss Hilda L. Gale became the bride of the Rev. John W. Brush, pastor of the First Baptist Church, New Haven, and son of Dr. and Mrs. E. F. Brush of Mt. Vernon, N. Y.

JOHN HAYS HAMMOND SUED FOR MINE SHARE

New York, June 17 (AP)—Alleging that John Hays Hammond, inventor and financier, has failed to pay him his share of profits in rich iron ore properties in the State of Minas Geraes in Brazil, Theodore Montague, who described himself as a mining engineer, and the discoverer of the deposits, entered suit for an accounting in Supreme Court.

SANTUIT HOME SWEPT BY $2,500 BLAZE

Cotuit, June 17.—Fire, thought to have been caused by a defective chimney, destroyed the home of Mrs. Benjamin White in Santuit Village. Chief A. Seabury Childs of the local fire department was early on the scene and help was sent from Hyannis.

Much of the furniture, including a piano, was saved and the firemen kept the flames from spreading to an adjacent house and a nearby store. Loss estimated at $2,500.

INVOLUNTARY PASSENGER BROUGHT ASHORE BY TUG

Lingering too long over the final farewell to a friend sailing for New York on the steamship Boston last evening, a young woman whose name could not be learned, was carried part way down the harbor before she discovered that she had tarried beyond time.

Misses' Silk Dresses

For Misses and Slender Women

Our Misses' Dress Department always specializes in the one, two or three-of-a-kind dresses. Once a model comes out from Paris, in the hands of some of our best makers, a limited number are purchased for those who wish the exclusive. They are always beautifully made and in lovely shades of the most fashionable colors. During the season a perfectly enormous business is done in dresses of this type, and we always keep the stocks full, goods arriving every day. But at the end of each season—just about this time each Spring—we take practically the entire lot of these dresses remaining in stock and put them in at two or three prices and close them out—an opportunity looked forward to.

Not only are the ultra-straightline dresses included, but they are the last things in the way of godets and panels and trimmings and pleatings, all too numerous, almost to mention the variety that gives distinction to each dress. In addition is the unique effect of color—the beauty of materials—plain dresses with just the touch of color one looks for—in fact, they come as near reproducing an ultra lot of French dresses as one can possibly conceive. Then everybody knows the charming variety of these dresses, and as fascinating as ever, they are irresistible at these low prices.

MIDGET TAKES OUT $7,500 POLICY

Lord Robert, Playing at Gordon's Olympia, Praises Evening American Insurance

The Boston Evening American $7,500 accident life insurance policy is popular with all ages and all classes. Little Lord Roberts, twenty-nine, only a little more than three feet tall and weighing only fifty pounds, signed up for a policy to day, and now says that he is going to challenge Jack Sharkey, and isn't afraid at all of the results. The only condition he makes is that Sharkey trains down to his weight and promises not to take his policy away from him.

"I have plenty of other insurance policies," Little Lord Roberts said, "but The Evening American's policy is the best that I have seen yet. I travel a good deal and will feel much safer now that I know I will be taken care of if anything happens to me."

Little Lord Roberts is starring in an act at Gordon's Olympia theatre, and is one of the smallest men alive today. He is perfectly formed and lacks only stature. He make up for this in cleverness, however, and said he was glad that he was quick to see the unusual opportunity offered by The Boston Evening American's insurance plan.

No physical examination, no red tape, delays the applicant for the Boston Evening American's $7,500 accident life insurance policy. All that has to be done is to sign up and pay $1 for the application and the policy will be delivered without delay.

Thousands already have received their policies and thousands more are signing applications, so it is well not to put it off, but get your application in as soon as possible. If you are already a Home Delivery subscriber to the Boston Evening American, merely fill out the insurance coupon elsewhere in this paper, turn it in with $1 to the Insurance Department, Boston Evening American, No. 5 Winthrop Square, Boston, and your policy will be sent you.

If you are not a Home Delivery subscriber, turn the coupon into the Insurance Department as directed above together with $1 and then pay your regular delivery boy 12 cents a week for a daily copy of the paper. In this case the policy will also be mailed to you. Don't delay. Do it now, before it is too late.

WHY HUB WANTS NEW TRAFFIC STANDS

Patrolman Edward F. Lenz on traffic duty at Governor square, Kenmore Station, and his control platform which has caused much unfavorable comment by Boston motorists. A more sightly platform is urged for this point.

Another prominent downtown business man, Carl E. Shumway, with offices in the Dexter building, No. 543 Washington street, today added his protest to hundreds of others against the type of portable traffic stands in use by the Boston police department.

Mr. Shumway believes the present stand at the corner of Washington and Summer streets not only is a desecration of downtown architectural pride but is also incapable of fully controlling the streams of traffic which converge on that point.

He outlined to the Boston Evening American a type of traffic stand which would elevate the officer higher than does the present platform, and suggested that a signal lighting system be installed on the highest point of its roof so that automobilists going north on Washington street and west through Summer and Winter streets could easily see the signals.

Describing the ease with which traffic is now handled at Boylston and Tremont streets by means of the mechanical traffic post at that post, Mr. Shumway also said a similar system of traffic control might be tried at Summer and Washington streets on a piece of apparatus proportionate in size to the area at that corner.

RECEPTION TO MUSIC LEADER

As a testimonial to the honor which Palestine has done a Boston musician, the Jews of the city will entertain Professor Boroe Morros at a farewell reception in Ford Hall tonight.

The professor is going to Palestine to conduct the Hebrew Opera Company and direct the Palestine Conservatory of Music. Professor Morros has been the musical director of the Crawford Street Synagogue since 1923.

Professor Morros is an able composer of Yiddish and Hebrew operas and holds the distinction of being a winner of the Rubenstein gold medal for originality in composition.

A committee headed by Elihu D. Stone and including Judge David A. Lourie, Samuel H. Waldstein, Mrs. David A. Lourie, Mrs. Ely Feibelman, Mrs. E. Van Noorden and Louis H. Steinberg, as treasurer have arranged the details of the send-off.

Stars from the Chauve-Souris Company will be on hand and, in addition, Mr. and Mrs. Henry Gideon will sing Yiddish songs. Mrs. Savitzkaya and Al Sand of the Boston Symphony Orchestra, will present their offering and Cantors Adelsman, Brodsky, Glickstein and Seifert will render ritual and folk songs.

"Uriel Acosta," an opera of his own pen, will be produced by Professor Morros when he takes hold of the Palestine Musical Company.

* * *

Bertha Mitchell of Brighton, another of the pretty members of the Jewish younger set, is to marry Seymour Barnett Quel of New York City. Quel is a member of the graduating class of the Harvard Law School this year.

Miss Mitchell is the daughter of the Mitchells of Wallingford Road, Brighton.

Dates for next season's activities already have been decided upon by some of the leading organizations of the city. The Roxbury Ladies' Helping Hand Fuel Society are to hold their ball in December and the Jewish Anti-Tuberculosis Association will sponsor their affair in February. Even at this early date reservations are being made at hotels and plans are being formed to make each event an outstanding success.

Does your wife or daughter drive your car?

DRIVING a motor-car nowadays is comparatively simple as compared to the days of frequent tire trouble, hand-cranking, bumpy roads and not-always-reliable motors.

Only one condition is growing negatively—traffic congestion. That calls for good brakes and a motor kept in the pink of condition. It must be full-powered and responsive to the touch of the throttle.

Dependable gasoline is important. Especially when wife or daughter is using the car. For handling a balky motor in traffic is not the pleasantest diversion for a woman—or for any driver, in fact.

THE refining of Atlantic Gasoline is watched constantly. There is never a let-up in keeping its quality up to a fixed high standard. Your faith in it must never be shaken. Whatever the condition of operation—traffic, speed, load or temperature—it must always serve you to the utmost.

Use Atlantic regularly and keep your motor sleek and eager-to-go. Atlantic contains nothing to harm it or reduce its efficiency. No sulphur to pit your valves. No acids to eat the metal of your cylinders or carburetor. No detonating fuel knocks to hammer your piston and crank-shaft bearings. No rapid accumulation of carbon.

And Atlantic is as dependable in supply as it is dependable in use. You can buy it most anywhere.

THOUSANDS GATHER EARLY FOR EVENING AMERICAN'S PRIZE FLIGHT

Edson; Captain L. E. Boutwell, observer, $150.

Third prize, Lieutenant Julian Dexter; Lieutenant Bert Devlin, observer, $75.

Fourth prize, Captain Clarence Hodge; Lieutenant George E. Sprague, observer, Boston Evening American Cup.

Fifth prize, Lieutenant E. S. Beck; Lieutenant Joseph Barber, observer, Boston Evening American Cup.

The six planes in the flight were manned by officers of the Twenty-sixth Division, Air Service, Massachusetts National Guard.

Two went to Providence, two to Worcester and two to Plymouth.

The flight was not a race; neither was it a stunt. The purpose was to demonstrate the military efficiency of the men entered in the contest; their ability to handle themselves and their craft in air, and their ability to make military observations which they would be obliged to make in war if a foreign invader was on these shores and overflying the towns over which they flew.

The first of the six planes took the air promptly at 9:30 a. m. The others hopped off at approximately half-hour intervals, until four had left. Then there was an interlude and at 11:35 o'clock the fifth plane went up, on its way to Worcester.

At 11:58½ the sixth and last plane hopped off, on its way to Plymouth, "hostile territory," for the occasion.

FLIERS 'DRAW LOTS' FOR AMERICAN RACE

Photo shows Boston American prize flight aviators at the East Boston Airport in the process of "drawing lots" for the race. Captain Clarence E. Hodge, pilot, is shown in the centre stooping over to "draw" his sealed orders, the document that revealed to him the time he was supposed to start, his destination and other details required in his flight. The other fliers followed him in this process.

there to make observations of the harbor, shipping, the people and the terrain around.

Thousands of Bunker Hill Day celebrators testified most audibly to their appreciation of this contribution by the Boston Evening American. Its underlying significance, indeed, could not be evaded or avoided by the dullest intelligence.

Ships of the air, celebrating an anniversary of a battle as impossible now as a clash of legions clad in armor; and pointing toward the future, when vague shapes may come out of the sky to wreak hatred upon civilian populations and make capital ships and coast artillery as the mussels of long ago.

Lieutenant E. S. Beck, with Lieutenant Joseph K. Barber, Jr., was the first out and the first to return. They flew to Providence, Leaving at 9:30 and spending approximately five minutes in the air over Providence, surveying that "hostile" city, they were back at the airport in East Boston at 11:02.

Before coming to rest, they circled Bunker Hill Monument twice, an example followed by the other planes upon their return from Providence, Plymouth and Worcester.

On the way back and while over the town of Canton, Beck's plane nearly was forced down when the air pressure failed to hold. In fact, the plane did descend from an altitude of 1,500 feet to 200 feet, and Canton people thought the aviators intended to land.

Lieutenant Barber, however, by means of a hand pump, overcame the difficulty and the plane rose again and finished triumphantly in the lead, as it had started.

Lieutenant Beck's plane took off from the Airport promptly on time. Thousands lined the waterfront and crowded into the reserved space. The pilot circled the city at low altitude and then picked up speed. Its engines were throbbing loudly as it swung southward and disappeared.

The second plane with Lieutenant Chester E. Wright and Captain Dudley E. Currier, observer, hopped off about twenty minutes later. It was bound for Plymouth, via Cohasset.

The third ascended a half hour later. It was in charge of Lieutenant Walter H. Mather and Lieutenant Conrad Bloedorn. They had difficulty in reaching altitude, but when the plane disappeared in the direction of Worcester it was 1,000 feet in air.

The fourth plane went up at 10:20. It was in charge of Lieutenant Albert L. Edson and Captain Louis Boutwell, observer. It flew low over Dorchester on its way to Providence.

The fifth plane, commanded by Lieutenant J. S. Dexter, pilot, with Lieutenant Bert Devlin, observer, took the air at 11:35. The sixth and last, went up at 11:58½, commanded by Captain Clarence E. Hodge and with Lieutenant George E. Sprague observer.

$500 IN PRIZES.

To stimulate interest in the flight, the Boston Evening American offered prizes aggregating $500 for those officers demonstrating the highest degree of military competency.

The aviators were instructed to make written observations of a military nature in their visits to Providence, Worcester and Plymouth. They were not to descend and were to comport themselves in every respect as if they were in hostile terrs.

They were to consider fields available for flying fields as airdromes; trains and railway centres as the property of powerful enemies and groups of people within a certain distance of the towns, which were their objectives, as hostile troops or populations.

Many prominent Greater Boston women, including several leading society women are serving as patronesses to today's prize flight.

Among the patronesses are the following: Mrs. Ronald T. Lyman, Mrs. Daniel A. de Menocal, Mrs. Guy Murchie, Mrs. William A. Gaston, Mrs. Porter H. Adams, Mrs. Carroll J. Swan, Mrs. James M. Curley, Mrs. T. Lothrop Motley, Mrs. Josiah Quincy, Mrs. Robert H. Stevenson, Jr.

Mrs. Theodore D. Howe, Mrs. Nathaniel Ayer, Mrs. B. H. Bristow Draper, Miss Hope Gray, Mrs. Maynard Ladd, Mrs. George B. Dabney, Mrs. S. Parker Bremer, Mrs. Gasper G. Bacon, Mrs. Benjamin F. Pitman, Mrs. Thomas G. Frothingham, Mrs. Gordon Prince, Mrs. Charles H. Morss, Jr., Mrs. Horace Morison, Mrs. A. E. Jones, Mrs. L. Vernon Briggs, Mrs. Edward L. Logan, Mrs. Channing H. Cox, Mrs. S. Huntington Wolcott, Mrs. Dudley R. Howe, Mrs. Charles P. Greenough, 2d, Mrs. Walter I. Badger, Jr., Mrs. Walter M. Pratt, Mrs. Curtis Guild, Mrs. Clarence R. Edwards and Mrs. Timothee Adamowski.

Recent endorsements of the American's prize flight came from Lieutenant-Commander Richard E. Byrd, Jr., third in command of McMillan's polar expedition; Lieutenant Leigh Wade, world flight aviator, and Lieutenant R. C. Moffat of Dayton, O., former commander of Boston Airport. All of these famous birdmen highly praised the public spirit of this newspaper for sponsoring today's flight. They agreed that such contests will do much to promote public interest in aviation and help bring about a realization of the vital part aircraft is soon to play in both national defense and commercially.

WOMAN NURSE FREED BY NAVY COURT-MARTIAL

First Members of Sex Face Trial on Charge of Bringing Booze Into U. S.

Washington, June 17. — Two nurses, said to be the first women ever to face a navy general court martial, faced trial in open court at the Washington Navy Yard today by order of Secretary Wilbur on charges of bringing liquor into the United States in violation of the Volstead Act.

The nurses, Miss Catherine C. Glancy, attached to the dispensary at the Navy Department, and Miss Ruth M. Anderson, chief nurse attached to the Washington Navy Yard, are alleged to have brought liquor from Cuba on the naval transport Kittery.

Mrs. Anderson was acquitted by the court.

Defence counsel contended the court had no jurisdiction, on the ground that it cannot try a case involving the question of violation of a civil law by persons not enlisted or commissioned personnel of the navy.

Secretary Wilbur held that those under his command who violate the laws should be held to account regardless of sex. The findings of the court must be approved by him. He has indicated that the sex of the accused will be taken into consideration in fixing any sentence.

O'BRIEN THREAT IS JOKE, SAYS GOODWIN

Repeats Charges in Connection With Ferson Desertion Case

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin is undismayed at the threats of District Attorney O'Brien to ask for a grand jury investigation of the registrar over his recent criticism of Mr. O'Brien's actions in the James Ferson desertion case.

In fact, when Mr. Goodwin was asked for a statement, he declared that he regarded Mr. O'Brien's threats as a "joke."

Ferson was the object of a red hot tilt between O'Brien and Goodwin a few days ago when the registrar, in a fiery broadside, published Ferson's record and declared O'Brien nolle prossed an indictment against him which charged Ferson with driving away after his auto had struck and injured a person.

Mrs. Ferson branded the Goodwin "desertion" story as false.

"I have no quarrel with Mrs. Ferson," Goodwin said. "In the position she is taking she is demonstrating to the full the finest virtue woman has shown down through the ages, loyalty even under adversity. From what I know of her she is worthy of better things.

"When District Attorney O'Brien nolle prossed that case it was a flagrant abuse of discretionary power. In fact I question his legal right to do it on the grounds given.

"This threat to take me before the grand jury is a joke."

Back in Prison, Why?---By Donald Lowrie

Amazing Story of a Man's Struggle Against Temptations That Pulled Him Down to Die in a Cell

One of the women was standing in the centre of the room brandishing a revolver and, screaming at the top of her lungs, the other was clinging to her.

Posed for the Boston Evening American by Paul Porter, Ana Silver and Lillian Arnolds of the "Rose-Marie" Company, now playing in Boston. Mr. Porter as Lowrie, Miss Silver as the gun woman and Miss Arnolds as the other.

Florence, Ariz., June 17.—In the hope of adding a few weeks to his life and enabling him to finish his story, "Back in Prison—Why?" which he is writing for The Boston Evening American, Warden Sims of the Arizona State penitentiary here gave orders today for the removal of Donald Lowrie to a ranch, a short distance from the prison, and for his care by a physician and another prisoner who before his prison sentence was a nurse in a hospital in this State.

By DONALD LOWRIE
CHAPTER XLIX.

EARLY one afternoon, while at work in the private office that had been established in the warden's residence, Osborne and I were startled by a number of piercing screams coming apparently through the open skylight of the visiting room, just below our back windows. The voice was that of a woman and it sounded as though she were being murdered.

Osborne leaped from his seat and rushed to the door leading into the administration building. I at his heels. We dashed through the front offices and down the stairs leading into the prison. We found the visiting room deserted save for two women and a guard, who was crouched behind a desk at the far end, with only his heels visible.

One of the women was standing in the center of the room brandishing a revolver and screaming hysterically at the top of her lungs. The other was clinging to her in a sort of paroxysm. The prisoner's space on the other side of the double screens was vacated. If there had been any prisoners there, they were gone. All this we took in as we entered the room.

Without an instant's hesitation and without knowing what was the matter with the deranged woman, Osborne strode up to her, reached and quickly wrested the revolver out of her hand. Someone from the office had followed us into the room and Osborne handed that person the revolver. I was too excited to notice who that person was, nor did Osborne know either.

Two Excited Women Baffle Inquirers

We then tried to learn what had caused the disturbance, but without success. Both women spoke Italian and both started pouring out the story at the same time, rapidly and vociferously. The more they talked and gesticulated, the less I knew, and Osborne told me afterwards that it was "all Greek" to him, or words to that effect. Gradually the two women quieted down and the warden suggested that an interpreter be sent for; also that he be ascertained who the women had come to visit.

We then returned upstairs, leaving the women, along with several guards and office men, in the visiting room. A few minutes later when an Italian interpreter from inside the prison appeared and we went back downstairs to learn, if possible, what the trouble had been about, the two women had disappeared; nor could the revolver be located.

Jack, the chauffeur, and I were dispatched to the Gunning station to intercept the disturbers, but we failed to find them. A small boy gave us the information that he had seen them stop and conceal something under the long flight of terraced steps leading down to the railroad station and investigation disclosed the revolver concealed there.

Woman's Nerve Fails in Plan for Killing

As near as we were able to learn, the woman who had been brandishing the revolver had come to the prison to kill her lover, a prisoner, intending to shoot at him through the double screen. Her nerve had failed, however, after she had drawn the weapon from her bosom and instead of shooting she had begun screaming and waving the revolver wildly. All who had been in the room had promptly vacated, save the guard who had dropped down behind his desk, his line of retreat being cut off.

After the excitement was over the question arose as to how the woman had secured possession of the revolver after Osborne had taken it from her and handed it to one of the prison attaches; also how had the two disturbers managed to get out of the visiting room and away from the prison without being intercepted and held for investigation?

The more we studied the facts, the more we became convinced that there was treachery or collusion involved; that some employe of the prison had deliberately "stood in" with the offenders. Investigation, however, failed to bring out any explanation, and we were obliged to drop the matter.

Desperate Attempt to Kill Fellow Prisoner

Shortly after this a rather desperate assault by one prisoner upon another took place within the walls and several reporters from New York appeared at the prison simultaneously, hungry for news. Osborne gave them carte blanche to investigate, permitting them to interview the injured man in the hospital, the one who had committed the assault, and such guards and prisoners who had witnessed the affray. The group, after making these inquiries, came

ROBISON IS AGAIN IGNORED

Naval Captain Who Figured in Oil Case Fails to Win Admiral's Berth

Washington, June 17 (A.P.).—Promotion to the rank of rear admiral was announced today for Captains Thomas Jones Senn, Richard Henry Leigh, George Day and Luke McNamee.

Captain J. K. Robison, who approved the leasing of the naval oil reserves, and who has been holding the rank of temporary rear admiral, was not included in the list of those advanced.

Secretary Wilbur announced Captain Robison would be kept at his post as chief of the bureau of engineering of the navy until his term expires in October. The Secretary would not predict what post would be assigned to him later.

PASS RANKING OFFICERS.

Captain Robison failed of promotion a year ago, although at that time he was recommended. His friends, declaring developments in the oil trials have vindicated him, predicted that he would win higher rank this year.

The recommendations were made by the naval selection board and Secretary Wilbur and were approved by President Coolidge.

In recommending promotions the selection board, in addition to Captain Robison, formerly of the Charlestown Navy Yard, passed over the first five ranking captains and two other captains a little farther down the list. Robison still has a chance for advancement next year, but after that he will be retired by operation of the age limit.

NAME COMMANDER LATER.

The new commander-in-chief of the fleet, to succeed Admiral R. E. Coontz, whose tour of duty will expire upon the completion of the Australian cruise this Summer, is to be announced later.

Captain Senn is from South Carolina and is stationed at the War College at Newport, R. I. Captain Leigh, from Mississippi, is on the staff of the commander-in-chief of the United States fleet. Captain McNamee, from Wisconsin, is naval attaché at London. Captain Laws, from Illinois, is commander of the Sixteenth Naval District at Cavite, P. I., and Captain Day, from Vermont, is commander of the submarine division of the battle fleet.

Cross of the United States Geological Survey, Doctor of Divinity, George W. Fiske, dean of the graduate School of Boston University, and Doctor of Arts, Edwin B. Child, portrait painter.

HUB BANKER GIVES TALK ON "CHAMBER" SHIP

S. S. George Washington, June 17 (A.P.).—Joint meetings were held aboard ship by the American delegates to the International Chamber of Commerce at Brussels and those bound for the international exposition of modern decorative and industrial arts at Paris.

One of the speakers was W. Irving Bullard, Boston banker and textile manufacturer, who declared the future of New England's cotton mills depended upon the introduction of art into the design of cotton fabrics.

DEATH PACT STUDENTS IN ROW

Amidon Girl and Mills Said to Have Quarrelled for 20 Minutes

A violent love quarrel which lasted for twenty minutes, immediately preceded the shooting of 15-year-old Priscilla Amidon, Wellesley Hills Junior High girl and her 18-year-old sweetheart, Sterling Mills, star high school athlete.

The shooting occured in a clump of bushes in Wellesley and the girl died, while young Mills, the sight of one eye gone from a bullet wound in his head, is recovering at the Newton hospital.

The investigation of the mysterious affair, conducted by Assistant District Attorney Ranney of Norfolk County, brought to light the details of the quarrel which terminated in the death of the girl and the shooting of the boy.

INQUEST ORDERED.

An inquest into the death of the Amidon girl will be conducted next week, according to State Officer Fleming.

Unless something new is developed at this inquest, it is likely that the Norfolk County district attorney's office will refuse to delve further into the matter.

The assistant district attorney has admitted that the Amidon girl and the Mills boy left notes, before the tragedy. One of these notes was written on white paper, the other on pink note paper. The contents of these notes have never been divulged.

It also is understood that the report of Medical Examiner George L. West has been filed with the district attorney's office and that this report holds that the Amidon girl committed suicide while young Mills shot himself. This report has never been made public.

MILLS STATEMENT.

Mills is said to have told the authorities that he believed when his sweetheart lifted the gun to her left temple following the quarrel that she did it to scare him. The officials admit that Priscilla Amidon wanted Mills in Wellesley for a purpose. They insist, however, that she shot herself because he was going to leave her and go to Natick.

Both Mr. and Mrs. Mills were at the hospital where they remained for nearly an hour. Mrs. Mills has denied herself to all interviewers.

GIRL LOSES "SHORT LEG" BATTLE FOR $20,000

Miss Bernice Watson, nineteen-year-old Lynn girl, who displayed a crippled left leg to a jury in Superior Civil Court at Salem, lost her suit for $20,000 against Dr. Harvey F. Newhall of Lynn. It was erroneously reported in an earlier edition of the Boston Evening American that Miss Watson had won the suit.

Judge Joseph A. Quinn took the case from the jury and ordered a verdict for the defendant.

The Lynn girl claimed that Dr. Newhall had improperly set and treated her leg after it had been fractured in a coasting accident on December 19, 1922. Her father was also suing for $4,000 for medical and other expenses incurred.

ENGINEERS PICK PRENTER AS STONE'S SUCCESSOR

Cleveland, June 17 (A.P.).—The advisory board of the Brotherhood of locomotive engineers met here today and selected William B. Prenter, Cleveland, to succeed Warren S. Stone as president of all brotherhood activities, effective immediately. Mr. Stone died here last Friday.

L. G. Griffing succeeds Prenter as first vice-president. Griffing was elected grand engineer at the last convention. A. Johnston, Chicago, assistant grand chief, succeeds Griffing as grand chief engineer. Johnston's position was not filled.

Read the News While It Is Still News, in the Boston Evening American

ALONG time ago the men who were then putting heart and brain into the building of the Boston Evening American set themselves an ideal.

It was to give the news, all the news, while it was news, and before it had become common knowledge or ancient history.

To that ideal, the men succeeding the founders have remained steadfast. The determination to keep this newspaper just that and all of that never was more steadfastly observed than it is today.

Perusal of a list of important news achievements since the beginning of the year gives earnest that the Boston Evening American continues to blaze the trail for its competitors; to live up to its ideal in the speedy and accurate presentation of news while it is fresh. Here is the list:

The Boston Evening American was first on the street with news of the earthquake which shook New England early in January. It was an hour ahead of its nearest competitor.

It was twenty minutes ahead of its fastest rival and an hour ahead of the slowest with news of the finding of the body of Floyd Collins in a Kentucky cave in February.

On February 7, it published an exclusive story of the culmination of the Estelle Taylor-Jack Dempsey romance.

On February 13, it carried an exclusive "heart interest" story, in the form of Mrs. Jessie Margaret Budlong's own statement of her relations with her husband, Newport and New York society man.

On April 22, it printed, exclusively, the story that Colonel Coolidge, father of the President, was coming to Boston, for observation and possibly an operation.

On April 24, it printed the first story of the return of Vanzetti to State Prison from Bridgewater.

During that same week this newspaper was first virtually everywhere in Boston with word of the conviction and sentencing of the "Lone Wolf."

On April 27, it published two exclusive interviews with Henry Ford. On the same day it published the story of the tremendous shakeup in the personnel of the Boston Symphony Orchestra.

Also, in April, the Boston Evening American "beat" the town with stories to the effect that Jimmy Sheehan had been transferred from Charlestown to Concord Reformatory; that Wayne Munn was not to wrestle here, as scheduled; and that the famous navy dirigible, Los Angeles, was scheduled to fly over Concord and Lexington in connection with the patriotic celebration.

On May 5, it was first to announce to the fans that Bobby Veach and Ferguson had been traded to the Yankees for Francis.

On May 12, it led the way with the announcement that a grand jury was about to probe Revere's financial difficulties.

On May 25, this newspaper was first with the flash that the jury trying Olympia Maeri had disagreed. That day, too, this newspaper led the town with news that William J. Corcoran and J. Warren Kane had been resentenced, with Theresa Duggan, their former pal, missing.

To be more general, this newspaper was first with important developments throughout such interesting cases as the Maeri trial, the Lucille Chatterton case, the Charlestown "Speed Kid's" exploits, the Lone Wolf chase and trial.

The Boston Evening American is a newspaper, not an organ. It has the news while it is news. Usually, it has it first.

DEATH TOLL IN RAIL WRECK TOTALS 42

New York, June 17 (A.P.)—Five separate investigations were under way today in the wreck of a Delaware, Lackawanna & Western Railroad tourist special train at Rockport Sag, N. J., 60 miles west of here, in which 42 persons were killed and 56 injured.

Of the injured the cases of sixteen are considered serious.

The train carried 182 German-Americans, mostly from Chicago. They were bound for Hoboken, N. J., to embark on the liner Republic to visit the Fatherland from which they had emigrated years ago. Only eighty sailed on the Republic yesterday.

SCALDED TO DEATH.

Speeding on a down grade, the seven-car train hit a stretch of mud and debris that had been washed over the tracks by an electrical storm. The heavy engine ploughed through, but the pony tender was thrown off the track. It clutched the frogs of a switch farther on and wrenched the engine and four steel cars from the rails.

Three cars piled up off top of the overturned engine. The steam pipes burst and sent scalding fog spouting directly onto the passengers in the cars.

It was the breaking of the pipes that caused the deaths of at least thirty of the victims, Joseph Snyder, a farmer watching the stars from his home nearby, saw the accident, sounded the alarm by telephone and, with his wife, rushed to give aid.

Lyman Gulick, another farmer, rode half clad in his automobile to Hackettstown, two miles away, and summoned physicians and ambulances.

BEGGED MAN SHOOT HIM.

When rescuers arrive, the steam had spent itself. The suffering was intense. One man forked a roll of bills from his pocket and begged Snyder to kill him. Only four trainmen and a few passengers were killed instantly.

One woman was decapitated. The others went through hours of agony before they died in hospitals at Easton, Pa., Dover, N. J., Phillipsburg, Morristown and Hackettstown.

Mr. and Mrs. John Pfeiler, an elderly couple from Holy Cross, Ia., riding in front of the first coach, had a remarkable escape with minor bruises. Other survivors told of a slightly scalded Chicago woman who limped moaning through the wreckage until she found her missing wallet. Then she shouted joyously and helped the rescuers.

I. C. C. TO RECONSIDER ON NICKEL PLATE DEAL

Washington, June 17 (A.P.)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today announced it would reconsider the authorization it had given P. P. and M. J. Van Sweringen to act as directors of three railroads—the Nickel Plate, the Chesapeake & Ohio and the Hocking Valley. Reconsideration was asked by the George Scott Cole committee of minority Chesapeake & Ohio stockholders which is fighting the Nickel Plate consolidation plan. The question will be considered along with other phases of the merger proposal, on which hearings were resumed today.

Vaccine Is Saving Infants From Tuberculosis

Paris, June 17 (A.P.)—The preventive vaccine against tuberculosis, known as "B. C. G.," is producing most effective results, according to a report read before the Academy of Medicine.

"B. C. G." stands for Bacillus Calmette Guerin. Of 172 nursing babies vaccinated three years ago none has died, and 94 examined last month are in perfect health. Of 137 babies vaccinated at the beginning of 1924, all members of the particular families, none have died of tuberculosis, although normally 32 per cent. would have succumbed to the disease.

"B. C. G." is useless if an infant has been attacked by tuberculosis.

POWERS AGAIN WARN CHINA ON RIOTING

LONDON, June 17 (I.N.S.).—Great Britain will remain neutral, the Foreign Office announced. Great Britain has sufficient warships in Chinese ports to protect her interests, it was said, but will not interfere in domestic warfare.

Peking, June 17 (A.P.).—Another note emphasizing the gravity of the situation caused by recent disturbances in China and calling upon the Chinese government to take measures was sent to the Foreign Office today by the Italian ambassador, Signor Cerruti, representing also other members of the foreign diplomatic corps.

GILDA GRAY, DANCER, WINS CUSTODY OF SON

Milwaukee, June 17.—Gilda Gray, who was Marianna Michelski of Milwaukee before her quivering shoulders made her known to the world, has gained the custody of her son, Martin, 11, in order to give him a university education.

When Gilda obtained a divorce from John Gorecki, Milwaukee bartender, January 29, 1923, the court gave the custody of the child to the father, with the understanding that the mother or her parents were to have him one month each Summer.

UNITY OF ENGLISH RACES IS URGED

Waterville, Me., June 17 (A.P.)—Justice Hugh H. Riddell of the Ontario Supreme Court in his address as commencement orator at Colby College today said that "the hope of our form of civilization lies in the harmonious collaboration of the English-speaking people."

"We know each other," he said, "and understand each other, for truly we come of the same blood. Together we stand and the world stands secure; divided we fall and the whole fabric of civilization falls."

HUGE LOT OF WOOD BURNS

Fighters Say the Flames Are Under Control After an All-Night Battle

Washburn, Me., June 17 (A.P.).—The entire mill property of the American Realty Company here was burned by a fire, which broke out last night and was still burning vigorously today, although considered under control.

In addition to the mill, which ground pulp wood, 40,000 cords of pulp wood was swept by flames.

The loss was estimated at approximately $640,000.

A high northwest wind threatened to cause destruction of the village, on the outskirts of which the mill property is located on the Aroostook River, but this was averted with the aid of volunteer firemen and all available apparatus in northern Aroostook County.

Loss on the pulp wood was estimated at approximately $25,000. Part of this was owned by the Great Northern Paper Company. The American Realty Company also lost 2,000,000 feet of logs, 1,000,000 at 750,000, and 1,000,000 feet of sawed lumber worth $30,000. The losses also included $23,000 on railroad cars.

NEW GYM APPROVED BY BROWN ALUMNI

Providence, R. I., June 17 (A.P.).—Recommendation that a new gymnasium for Brown University be erected on Aldrich Field, one and one-quarter miles from the campus, was unanimously approved by the Associated Alumni in annual meeting.

The alumni elected the following officers: President, Henry C. Clark, '07, Providence; first vice-president, William Allan Dyer, '86, Syracuse, N. Y.; second vice-president, Wiley H. Marlor, '12, Worcester, Mass.; third vice-president, Arthur W. Pinkham, '02, Lynn, Mass.; secretary, Edward K. Aldrich, '02; Providence; treasurer, Byron S. Watson, '97, Providence.

MANY PITTSBURGH PUPILS HAVE THYROID GOITRE

Pittsburgh, June 17 (A.P.).—Examination by a staff of physicians among 107,773 boys and girls in Pittsburgh's public schools has revealed that 47,460 have enlarged thyroid goiter, it was announced in a report today by Dr. H. J. Benz. He said the enlargements were most notable in children at the age of 12. At this age, he stated, boys showed 42 per cent; thyroid enlargements and girls 66.6 per cent.

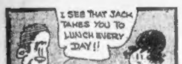

Dr. Benz advocates the application of prophylactic treatments in early childhood and suggested the use of iodine salt.

BOY ADMITS STEALING $2,296 ON FLIP OF COIN

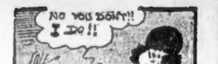

New York, June 17 (A.P.)—Because a coin fell tails up, Anthony Noto, seventeen years old, a messenger boy, appeared in police court today on charges of grand larceny and was held in default of $10,000 bail. Noto said that on June 11 he was given $2,296 by his employers, the Warren Nash Motor Co., to deposit in a bank, and tossed heads or tails to see whether he should bank the money or not. Tails won and he went to Albany with the $2,296. He was traced to Pittsfield, Mass.

MEN FOR WHOM PRIEST PRAYED ARE ACQUITTED

Jersey City, June 17 (AP).—The prayers of the Rev. George F. Bennett and his Roman Catholic parish at Weehawken for the acquittal of twelve men charged with giving protection to bootleggers, have been answered. Ten of the men, including nine Weehawken police, were acquitted by a jury in Hudson County Court here. Two others were discharged before the case went to the jury.

10,000 CHEER FOR HARVARD AT YALE GAME

CRIMSON FIGHTS TO GET BREAK

Class of 1,900 Out in Force to Celebrate Its 25th Anniversary Year

Harvard and Yale meet on Soldiers Field diamond this afternoon in the second game of their annual baseball series. The tilt will start at 3 o'clock.

Supporters of both clubs earnestly hope that their respective favorites do better today than they did at New Haven yesterday, when the Blue triumphed over the Crimson in a comedy of errors by the score of 25-15.

Coach Ned Mahan chose Johnny Toulman to pitch.

Toulman was injured last week and he was not figured to play in the Yale series, but as Coach Mahan had to use Spaulding, Puffer and Herrman in yesterday's game, he decided to use Toulman, in spite of his unhealed injury.

"Ducky" Pond, hero of the famous Harvard-Yale football game in the Stadium tow years ago, will start on the mound for the Elis. In yesterday's game Pond was hit rather hard and Coach Mahan's boys are hoping that they can solve his delivery again today.

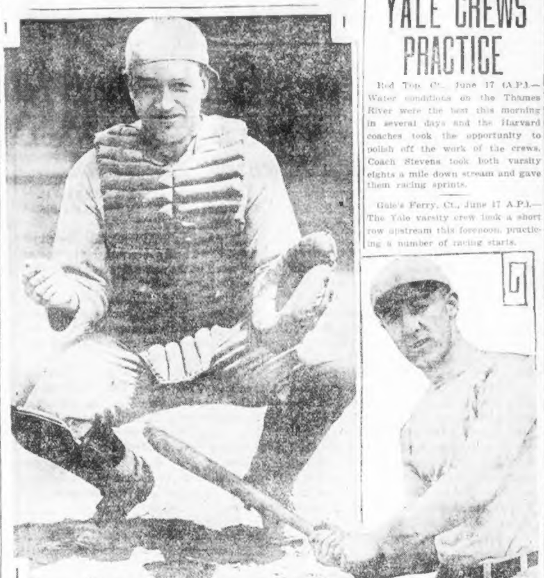

At Soldiers Field this afternoon, 10,000 Harvard undergraduates and graduates will try to cheer their team to victory. The class of 1900 will be at the game in mass, as they are celebrating their twenty-fifth anniversary as graduates of the University across the Charles.

Never before in the history of the oldest grads did baseball representatives of the rival institutions look as wretched as the nines that sported the Crimson and Blue in the opening of the series.

Poor in the field, and even worse in the box were both clubs. The Eli won because they were not quite as bad as their rivals.

Yale made 25 runs on 24 hits, Harvard, 15 runs on 19 hits. Yale is charged with two errors and Harvard with four. This total, however, does not represent the errors of omission, which are too numerous to mention.

HARVARD NINE PLAYS YALE AGAIN TODAY

HARVARD AND YALE CREWS PRACTICE

Red Top, Ct., June 17 (A.P.)—Water conditions on the Thames River were the best this morning in several days and the Harvard coaches took the opportunity to polish off the work of the crews. Coach Stevens took both varsity eights a mile down stream and gave them racing sprints.

Gale's Ferry, Ct., June 17 (A.P.)—The Yale varsity crew took a short row upstream this forenoon, practicing a number of racing starts.

U. S. ARMY POLO TEAM WINS PRACTICE GAME

London, June 16 (A.P.)—Playing their last practice game before defending their international military polo championship title against the British army team on June 20, the American Army team today beat Lord Wodehouse's Harlequins, 13 goals to 4.

NO. CAMBRIDGE TO HONOR GAUTREAU

By JOE CASHMAN.

Walter "Doc" Gautreau, next to Owen Carroll the most noted ball player in the collegiate world for the past four seasons, will today make his final local appearance before embarking on a diamond career that is expected to lead him to the heights in one of the major leagues.

"Doc" will sing his amateur "swan song" playing for North Cambridge against Lawrence in a "Twi" League game at Russell Field, starting at 3 o'clock.

The game over, he will pack his grip in preparation for a journey to the Pacific Coast where he will spend the Summer making ready for his debut in "big time" next Spring. He could catch on with any major league club in the land today, but he has wisely decided that a little more seasoning will do him no harm.

For the past eight years Gautreau has helped to make his home town famous, first at Cambridge High and Latin School and of late years at Holy Cross and on the "Cantab" league team. And before the game this afternoon his friends and neighbors will pay him tribute for what he has done. He will be presented with an appsopriate gift and will receive enough well wishes to make him the greatest ball player in the world if well wishes were all that were needed.

Miss Collett Is Victor at Golf

Versailles, June 17 (A.P.)—Miss Glenna Collett of Providence, R. I., today went into the second round of the French international golf championship for women by beating Mrs. P. Garon of Great Britain, two up and three to play.

Miss Collett lost only the fourteenth hole in her match with Mrs. Garon, who three years ago was a finalist in the British girls' championship.

Miss Cecil Leitch, the strongest British contender in the French tournament, forfeited her match today because of the hot weather.

GOOZEMAN'S SECONDS THROW IN THE TOWEL

Vernon, Calif., June 17 (A.P.)—Bud Taylor, Terre Haute, Ind., bantamweight, won a technical knockout over Ernie Goozeman of San Diego, in the seventh round of their scheduled ten-round bout here. The fight ended when Goozeman's aides the San Diego boxer had undergone threw a towel into the ring after a terrific mauling.

Celebrating!

By "AL"

We are no Daniel Webster. And yet, on this glorious Seventeenth of June, we feel an urge to mount the platform and set off a few Roman candles on the subject of the Boston Evening American sport pages.

We wish to point with pride to the Sporting Department's record for the six months that are flat-footing to a close. The department has been delivering the goods to the sport fans. IT HAS BEEN GIVING THE NEWS AND THE FEATURES.

George V. Touhey's "Old-Time Sport Stories" are an illustration of the sport feature idea. That was a series that got all the boys talking. Nick Flatley's stories of the Braves' Spring training trip and Fred Lane's accounts of the adventures of the Red Sox in the Southland were also read by a growing following.

On April 19 the Boston Evening American, following its policy of printing SPORT NEWS ON THE DAY IT HAPPENS, covered the Marathon race with a completeness, in news and pictures, that left other papers nothing new to say twelve hours later.

With the opening of the baseball season came the Box Score Edition, with its detailed, play-by-play, account of the local big games and a complete box score, flashed on the street before half the fans had left the ball orchard.

As the various outdoor sports awoke from their Winter's sleep, the sport pages "went to it." Golf, tennis, rowing, soccer, amateur, semi-pro and Twilight baseball, track events—all the varied activities and interests of a sport-loving public—were reported on in detail by men who KNEW the sports of which they wrote. Then came The Peach—the last word on news, markets and sports.

And always there was the work of the Boston Evening American four Sport Aces—Runyon, Tad, Conway and Flatley. Just to mention two samples: Flatley pulled a big exclusive on Babe Ruth. Conway gave the inside of the gamblers' plot of hook in the easy marks in the betting on the Sharkey-Maloney fight.

The real facts first. The news on the day it happens. It has been that way during the past six months. It will continue to be that way for many times six months.

Coronation Won by Astor Horse

Ascot, Eng., June 17 (A.P.)—Lord Astor's Saucy Sue won the Coronation Stakes for $5,000, run here today. Saucy Sue was winner of both the One Thousand Guineas and the Oaks this year.

Reid Walker's Inca was second and the Aga Khan's Firouze Mahal was third. Four ran.

Saucy Sue won by ten lengths. Four lengths separated Inca and Firouze Mahal. The betting was: Saucy Sue, 10 to 1 on; Inca, 10 to 1 against, and Firouze Mahal, 50 to 1 against.

Cockpit won by three lengths and half a length separated Polyphontes and Priory Park. The betting was Cockpit 100 to 6 against. Polyphontes 10 to 1 against and Priory Park 50 to 1 against.

Sir J. Rutherford's Solario won the "Ascot Derby Stakes" for $5,000 also run here today. W. M. G. Singer's Sparus was second and H. E. Morriss" Manna third. Manna was the winner of this year's Derby.

Solario won by 1½ lengths. Half a length separated the second and third runners. The betting was Solario 11 to 4 against, Sparus 10 to 1 against, and Manna 13 to 8 on.

Priory Park is owned by a Chichester butcher. Almost every race follower in that town backed the horse when he was entered in the Derby this year.

YANKS RELEASE SCOTTY TO SENATORS

New York, June 17 (A.P.)—Everett Scott, veteran shortstop of the New York Yankees, has been released to the Washington Senators by the waiver route, it was announced at the Yankee office today.

Everett Scott holds baseball's greatest record for stamina and consecutive playing of games, having taken part in 1,307 games while in the major league circuit. His long run of games started while a member of the Boston Red Sox beginning back in June 20, 1916. He left the Boston club the Winter of 1921-22 to join the Yankees with Sam Jones and Joe Bush.

Scott's great record was brought to a stop on May 6 of this season when he was benched by Manager Miller Huggins of the New York Yankees. Scott was somewhat disturbed at the action of the New York manager and made no bones in telling the world.

CASEY WINS, HENNESSY LOSES IN ENGLAND

Eastbourne, Eng., June 17 (AP)—Great Britain and America each scored a victory in the singles matches which opened the three days' play between tennis teams representing the two countries.

Ray Casey of San Francisco crushed J. B. Wheatley, former British Davis Cup player, in the first match, 6—0, 6—1, 6—3; but Indiana's rising young star, John Hennessy of Indianapolis, was off his game and fell a victim to the steady play of another former British Davis Cup competitor, J. B. Gilbert, 6—2, 6—3, 7—5.

BUNKER HILL DAY OFF DAY FOR THE BRAVES

St. Louis, June 17.—The Boston Braves arrived in town today after dropping four out of five games to the Cubs in Chicago. Manager Dave Bancroft, believing the Braves are again ready to win a few baseball games, will have his Tribe rest for the day and face the Cardinals tomorrow. Johnny Cooney is likely to oppose the Cardinals in the Braves initial game of the season against the Cards on the latter's ball orchard.

Moe and Joe, They Get the Dough----Sometimes

Moe dropped over another winner yesterday but as the price was short he is not going to do any gabbing over it. He put his slugs on Mino and so did thousands of others. This afternoon he is taking a crack at another good one and hopes the grabbers will be a little more liberal than they were yesterday. California Tommy Byrne is riding with Moe. Cash in kick $1,989.59.

Progress

Two recent developments have focused public attention on Graham Brothers Trucks as never before.

One was the sweeping price reductions of May 15th, ranging from $80 to $160.

The other was Graham Brothers ascendancy to leadership by building more 1½ ton trucks than any other manufacturer in the world, during the first quarter of 1925, and by achieving second position in the 1 ton and 1½ ton fields combined.

Progress such as this deserves public attention—and eliminates all doubt as to the logical truck to buy!

Ripe and tasty coolness for hot, long days

HOT, long days give tired husbands short tempers. The best cure is a pretty table set with deliciously cool foods. A fruit cocktail, for instance, is made soothingly delicious with the sweetness of ripe bananas.

Serve bananas ripe. When the golden skin is flecked with brown, the bananas are fully ripe. Then it is more than good. When fully ripe it has that tantalizing, delicious flavor that only a ripe banana can have.

Buy bananas by the dozen. Keep them out of the ice-chest, and let them ripen naturally. Then serve them when they are tastiest and best—when fully ripe.

MEDBURY SAYS—

By John P. McCbury

SUMMER tourists are crowding the excursion trains, and children who have been making the same trip since 1915 are still five years old.

ONE woman even put rompers on her 13-year-old son so that he could ride free.

SHE held him on her lap and gave him a bottle every time the conductor came through for the tickets.

THE conductor is afraid to say anything for fear the baby might jump off his mother's lap and punch him in the nose.

ONE kid who was trying to pass as 12 years old had three children of his own.

A CONDUCTOR on the Twentieth Century Limited says you'd be surprised if you went into the wash room and saw how many youngsters were shaving.

NO matter whether a kid has a beard or not, his mother still insists that he's only 10.

THE conductor on a New York train was trying to make a mother pay half fare for her child. She was furious. She said "You're the first conductor in 15 years who ever doubted my little boy's age."

A KID who is 11 at home is only 8 on the road.

HE takes off six years the minute the trunks are packed.

HIS mother warns him to cut out his swearing and use baby talk.

HE does as his mother tells him, otherwise she won't give him any cigaret money when they get off the train.

ONE dame even tried to pay half fare for her grandfather. She explained to the conductor that he was in his second childhood.

A BROOKLYN woman never takes her 15-year-old son on a train without borrowing a 5-year-old birth certificate from the woman next door.

ONE conductor looked at it and said, "I guess you're right, madam, are certainly using born tomorrow's date!"

THIS scheme worked fine for her son until the neighbor made a mistake one summer and gave her the birth certificate of a 21-year-old girl.

THE mother was distracted. She had to scout around the train and dig up some dresses for her boy.

A FEW years ago a child could hide behind his mother's skirts, but this would be impossible today.

ONCE in a while you find a woman who gives the correct age of her children, but the average child who tries to pass for 11 is older than the conductor.

WE WISH

That the postman wouldn't come to our house on the first day of the month.

That everybody worked as hard in our office as the electric light meter does.

That our wife would never crochet another tie for us and expect us to wear it.

That everybody else was color blind so that we could have all the white meat of the chicken.

That alarm clocks had never been invented.

In Extreme Need

Helping Hand Editor:

My husband after a long illness worked a short time on very small pay and now is out of work. We owe ten months' rent and I expect the stork in a short while and would like some baby clothes, blankets, sheets, pillow slips, nightgowns, curtains, etc. Any of these things will be greatly appreciated. I can't go to church on account of not having a coat or dress. I wear size 40 or 42. Boy, 1½, needs clothes and shoes, size 4, and girl, 3, needs clothing and shoes, 6. I am in extreme need.

MRS. A. A. C.

Wants Home in Suburbs

Helping Hand Editor:

Is there some reader who will take into her home a young woman and her little girl, 11 years old? Woman could do light housework and would be satisfied with small wages. Girl needs fresh eggs and milk, as she is delicate, so prefer to be in the suburbs.

MRS. H. K.

Hard to Get Along

Helping Hand Editor:

My husband died six months ago and left me with two small children, girl 22 months' old and baby three weeks old. I find it very hard to get along and would appreciate if some kind reader had an bassinet or baby carriage they could give me; also any clothes for myself, size 38, shoes 3½. I have been sick since my baby came and therefore not able to work.

MRS. H. S.

Needs of Others

Mrs. J. A., who expects the stork soon, would appreciate a few sheets, cases and baby clothes.

Mrs. M. S., mother of five children, just getting up from a sick bed, would appreciate some shoes, size 5 to 6½ E, medium. The ones she has have no soles.

Mrs. C. C. will give free rent to a middle aged couple (no objection to one or two children) or a lone man in return for living and working on her small farm in Mansfield the year round.

Mrs. S. P. D. will take a little girl, three to ten years of age, for a few weeks with view to adoption.

Mrs. M. W. expects the stork soon and would appreciate infants' clothing, piece of blanket, etc., shoes 7½, shirts and pants for husband; dress, size 36 or 38, and shoes 5 or 5½ for herself.

William, too old to work and very much in need of money, would sell his good chest of tools cheap.

Mrs. S. J., widow, would appreciate an ice chest.

MEDITATIONS OF A WIFE

By Helen Rowland

Helen Rowland

EVERY girl dreams she is marrying a "cherunker" — and wakes up to discover that she has acquired a coach, a trainer, an umpire and a manager.

* * *

It takes two women—a wife and a stenographer — to keep the average man going straight, and even then he is apt to skid somewhere between his desk and the dinner table.

* * *

A woman can learn more secret and unsuspected things about her husband's talents and weaknesses in one week of camping with him than in ten years of home life.

* * *

A husband who "bucks" may in time be conquered and tamed—but WHAT can any woman do with a man who just "buckles" and lops down after marriage?

* * *

There are times when the most independent girl gets tired of freelancing in the game of hearts and longs for a nice, solid, domestic job in which she can relax her facial muscles and let her hair go uncurled for a while.

* * *

Even when a woman gives a critical man "a dose of his own medicine," she has to camouflage it with sugar and orange juice to get him to swallow it.

* * *

Why does a man always want to marry a spirited woman just in order to take the wind out of her sails and keep her safely tied to the dock somewhere?

* * *

Here and there you find a woman who has a positive genius for marriage, but most of us have only a sort of amateur talent, which, like a "parlor voice," has to be carefully cultivated just to keep us from getting off key.

* * *

Husbands are something like cucumbers: when you find they persistently disagree with you, the only thing to do is to leave them ALONE.

BEDTIME STORY

SOMETHING ABOUT DIANA.

By Foxy Grandpa

"FOXY GRANDPA," said Bobby one day as we passed Madison Square and saw that they were beginning to tear down Madison Square Garden, where Bobby had had so many happy days at the circus, "the first thing they did was to take down the statue of Diana off the top of Madison Square Garden, wasn't it?"

"You're right, Bobby," I answered. "I've kind of forgotten about Diana," said Bobby. "Won't you tell me about her again?"

We found a seat in the Square and I refreshed Bobby's memory about the beautiful goddess.

"Diana," I began, "was the daughter of Jupiter and Latona—and she was her own brother, Bobby?"

"Apollo," answered Bobby proudly.

"Good boy," I answered. "As you remember, Bobby, Apollo was the god of the sun, while Diana was the goddess of the moon.

"But Diana had a lot to do besides presiding over lighting the earth at night by the moon. Because she had three jobs—first to see that the moon kept shining and in this office she was called Luna.

"Then, in Hades, she was called Hecta, and ruled the souls of the dead.

"Finally on earth, her name was Diana and on earth she was the queen of the forests and mountains and of all wild animals and last but not least she protected all hunters.

"That is why she is called the goddess of the chase and is always pictured as she was when she poised on tip-toe on the top of that high tower, with her quiver full of arrows slung over her shoulder and her bow in her hand."

"She had a lot to do, didn't she, Foxy Grandpa?" asked Bobby. "I'm surprised she had time ever to go hunting."

"Oh," I laughed, "she always found time for that and when she went hunting she always took a crowd of her girl friends with her. They were the wood-nymphs and none of them liked men. Because you see Diana shunned the society of men and resolved never to marry. So her attendants held the same views."

"Did they spend all their time hunting?" asked Bobby, "those girl friends of Diana?"

"Sometimes they stopped in the woods and sang. They sang the most beautiful choruses and the beautiful Diana stood in front of them and led the singing."

"And she never got married?" asked Bobby.

"No," I answered, "but she fell in love once."

"Tell me about it, please," begged Bobby.

"Another day, Bobby," I answered. "We'd better take the next bus."

The first time that Father said, "Just between you and me, Old Man."

When your best girl tells you that she thinks you could grow a darling mustache in no time at all.

When somebody gives you a dime and you can go around asking the rest of your gang if anybody has change for ten cents.

When the boy on the next floor has to pawn his saxophone.

When you finally wore the "new" off your pipe.

The time you were trying to get up the nerve to discharge your cook and she left without notice.

When you dreamed that the teacher had mumps and couldn't come to school.

The night you did a card trick and nobody in the room could figure out how you did it.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By Aline Michaelis.

THERE are songs of today and tomorrow, there are songs of the low and the high; songs whose gladness the bluebird would borrow, songs as sweet as the Summer wind's sigh. Happy songs of the toiler rejoicing in his share of the labors of earth; tender songs of the mother when voicing a love that is Heaven has birth. Some may say life is shadowed by sadness; they may tell of earth's burdens and years, but the proof of their falsehood is gladness that still rings in man's songs down the years. Songs of childhood are brimming with laughter, in youth's lilts hope and promise are strong, and throughout the long years that come after man, through life marches ever to song.

WHEAT SCORES SHARP ADVANCE IN CHICAGO

Wheat scored a sharp early advance in Chicago, influenced by an unexpected upturn in quotations at Liverpool and by indications that a hot wave was spreading northward. Buying was also stimulated by the fact that the market had been declining for nine successive days, and that values had fallen more than 20 cents a bushel within a week.

Profit taking sales quickly broadened out and a reaction from top figures ensued, but the effect was only transient. The opening, 1 cent to 4⅛ cents higher, July $.151 to $1.53 and September $1.48⅝ to $1.50¾, was followed by rapid changes in which July touched $1.53½ and September $1.51¼.

FRONT PORCHES AND GARDENS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

AMERICANS, and especially those who live on Main Street, are front porch people.

They like to sit out exposed to the view of the passersby and have no objection to the world looking in on them.

When you go into older countries, for instance into Spain and Italy, you find few front porches.

On the contrary, you find patios, or gardens, around which the house is built.

The garden is concealed from everything, but it is open to the sky. You get outdoors and also privacy—two things which usually do not go together.

There are times in a man's life when privacy seems to be a necessity. The world is too much with us. It gets on our nerves. We want to get by ourselves and think things out.

This privacy is in nowise disturbed by the view upward. The stars enter into every man's calculation and they do not disturb his meditation.

On the contrary he cannot have the privacy he seeks without being shut off from the world. Hence the essential part of a garden is a wall or barrier of some kind between one's self and other people.

Being open to the sky is like keeping the soul open to God or to those influences which come to us from the sky. There is something peculiarly individual in the spiritual help we get from above. There is nothing that disturbs us when we can own a bit of outdoors which is enclosed from other people. What with our telephone and radio and other means of communication the world is altogether too present with us and the soul needs that isolation from time to time which it can only find in a garden.

A garden is better than a room because it has no ceiling. Nothing but infinity is above it. And that sense of infinity comes down to water the soul.

Some day I intend to build a house. And when I do it will be a series of rooms around a garden or patio. I will have my own retreat, not from the infinite, but to the infinite. There I shall gather my messages and inspirations!

I have lived in rooms all my life and I feel the effect of them. I want to live a little while without any roof over my head.

LAKE COPPER MEETING LACKS NEEDED QUORUM

Owing to the non-receipt of sufficient proxies by Boston-listed Lake Copper Co. to give a quorum of 51 per cent. of the 100,000 shares issued, the annual meeting scheduled for Tuesday was postponed. The stock has been inactive and the property idle for so long that shareholders have been neglectful in signing and returning their proxies. Meantime present officers and directors continue in office.

Penn Seaboard Steel

Plants of Penn Seaboard Steel Co. are operating at about 45 per cent. of capacity, having been put on that basis about a month ago. This compares with around 65 per cent. in April and 85 per cent. in early part of the year.

Liberty Bond Prices

Liberty bond prices (fractions in 32ds) were: 3½s 101.1⅛ first 4s 102.8 bid; second 4s 101.3 bid; first 4¼s 102.17; second 4¼s 101.13; third 4¼s 101.28; fourth 4¼s 102.25; treasury 4s 103.4; treasury 4¼s 107.7.

Sterling Unchanged

Sterling (cables) were at $4.86¼, unchanged; francs 4.78 cents, up .02 cent.

FINANCE

—By B. C. Forbes—

America is a land where dreams, even the boldest dreams, come true.

Edison's dream of electricity in every home is rapidly moving towards fulfilment, as is Alexander Graham Bell's early dream of a telephone in every home, and Ford's dream of a motor car for every family. A radio at every fireside, the latest dream, also is being transformed into a reality.

The electric men have solved the problem of production of electricity, but they have not yet mastered long-distance, economical distribution. But that and other achievements are on the way.

* * *

Forward-looking statements from several leaders in the electric light and power industry have been given. Here are more:

A. E. Fitkin, president, National Public Service Corporation:

"It is my belief that the one big factor which is wielding the greatest influence and generating the greatest impetus ever given for the complete development and widespread use of electrical energy in the United States, is the gigantic design of a super-power system for the entire country. I know of no other thing in the history of American progress which so truly defines that over-worked term 'co-operation' as this scheme of interchange power lines criss-crossing the continent and making for constant, abundant supply of power, lowering of rates to a minimum and, because of these two prime factors, stabilizing utility investments from the investor's point of view."

H. Hobart Porter, president, American Water Works and Electric Company:

"To find a parallel to the enormous increase in the production and consumption of electric power it is necessary to go back to the business awakening during the years following the invention of the steam engine. No one who is familiar with the growth of the electric industry in the past twenty-five years would undertake to place a limit to its expansion, certainly it will not cease until the most useful and cheapest form of energy is everywhere available."

Arthur Williams, New York Edison Company:

"The outlook for the immediate future of the electrical industry in this country strikes me as being more hopeful and promising than at any time during its history. I take this optimistic view partly because of the permeation throughout the industry of an appreciation of our many-sided obligations to the public, that the electrical industry accepts this obligation; and, finally, because of the extraordinary dependence upon electrical energy."

Colonel H. M. Atkinson, chairman, Georgia Railway and Power Company:

"A community that starves its utilities stops its own growth and development. The public must realize that the authority to regulate is necessarily charged with the responsibility to see that that regulation is fair and just and gives assurance of security to the investment. The public, understanding the facts, will in the end act fairly and justly by the utilities. That is why it is of vital importance to the utilities never to let up in furnishing the public with correct information."

* * *

The extraordinary results achieved by one utility corporation through advertising of the right kind may be described later. The facts should interest every business executive and every advertiser.

THE DEAF HEAR

"I was as deaf as a haddock," said Mr. Geo. W. Carter, 69 Morrison Ave., Somerville. "I had noises in my head—cracking noises like I used to have when my ears would fill with water while swimming." He continued: "I applied for relief at the eye and ear infirmary and was told to have all my teeth extracted and return again in three weeks. I paid eight dollars for X-Rays and they found all kinds of things the matter with me, but did not relieve me. Miss Price, who lives in the same house, told me to consult Dr. Walsh. I did so, and his treatment has restored my hearing and banished the noises." Mr. Carter was for 25 years in the police department of Cambridge, is 66 years old and is at present in the employ of the Hotel Bellevue as night detective.

The wonderful power of the X-RAY and MERCURY-QUARTZ LIGHT TREATMENT is proved by the fact that they are accomplishing wonderful results in diseases of every description—CATARRH, DEAFNESS, BRONCHITIS, STOMACH DISEASE, NERVOUS DISORDERS, SKIN DISEASE.

No matter what your disease may be, remember that Dr. Walsh gives

BOSTON, WEDNESDAY, JUNE 17, 1925

BOSTON EVENING AMERICAN

Contented workmen are able to give themselves and their children every educational advantage. In proportion to population, more pupils GRADUATE from the Brockton High School than from any other high school in the United States!

Brockton and South Shore District makes as many pairs of men's strictly fine shoes as are made by the rest of the country put together. In the production of shoes retailing at $7.00 to $10.00, this District has few rivals.

Where Minute Men Produce the Greatest Volume of Men's Fine Shoes Made in America

IF JOHN is one of those expert craftsmen for which the shoe district of Brockton and the South Shore has been famous for generations, but if conditions in the trade have been such that even the best workman can find employment for only five half-days in the week—

1—How is Mr. John going to continue to make regular payments on the house?

2—What are the chances of young John going straight from Brockton High to "Tech"?

3—How long must Mr. and Mrs. John wait for the automobile they hoped to buy this year; and,

4—How does the family grocer feel about one thing and another?

Correct answers to these questions are, of course, fairly obvious. The John family is in a bad way. Father is more than likely to fall behind in his payments on the house and may, indeed, have to give it up. Young John must go to work, if employment can be found, and "Tech" must wait a year, at least. Motor car? That, of course, the Johns being New Englanders and blessed with at least the average amount of common sense, is out of the question. As for Mr. Grocer and HIS family and THEIR Summer—well!

On Full Time Again

But, on the other hand—

Suppose the shoe industry HAS experienced an upheaval.

Suppose conditions in the industry have, at times, seemed almost hopeless.

And suppose the announcement suddenly is made, to John and all the other expert workmen in a city of approximately 70,000 inhabitants, that first one and then another of the big shops is about to resume operations on FULL time.

What, then, will be the answer to our questions?

Why, the Johns keep the house, of course. Young Mr. John will go to Cambridge in the Autumn. There is at least a fair chance that, sooner or later, the Johns will join the happy millions who own small cars.

The family grocer? The druggist? The piano man, florist, hardware dealer, department store proprietor?

Stores Are Selling Shoes

All of which is presented today as at least the suggestion of how Brockton felt a day or two ago when the announcement was made that, beginning on Monday next, the great factories of the W. L. Douglas Shoe Company out on Spark street in the Montello section will be operated on FULL TIME.

Resumption of operations on full schedule, Major Daniel W. Packard of the Douglas Company said, was based upon a study of the volume of sales in Douglas stores throughout the country. That study, it appeared, warranted the operation of the factories on full time. The cutters are to come in next Monday; members of the other crafts on succeeding days.

From the beginning, the Douglas announcement went on to say, the plant will turn out from 5,000 to 6,000 pairs of shoes daily. And here, to sturdy and patient and courageous Brockton, was the most encouragingly significant feature of the situation, for this will be about twice the Douglas output at the time of the recent closing.

That the shoe business down in the Quality District is turning the corner back to what the late President Harding called "normalcy" was again indicated on the following day, when the cutters employed at Holbrook by the Brockton Shoe Company were notified to return to work today on full time.

In Brockton alone there are more than 50 shoe factories, employing, under normal conditions, between 14,000 and 15,000 workers. The Douglas and the Brockton Company announcements were good news to all of them. No one looks for a "boom"—and, to tell the truth, few want one, for booms have a way of flattening out most unexpectedly—but Brockton shoe manufacturers as a class do expect a decided but probably slow improvement, a steady gain, from this time on. Immediately after the Fourth of July, at the latest, every factory in Quality Town will be hard at work on Autumn orders.

If ever a city and district were deserving of encouraging news, that city and that district are Brockton and the South Shore.

The "Quality" District

For, as President John S. Kent of the Shoe Manufacturers puts it, Brockton and the South Shore have "held fast to that which is good."

The Quality District, former Mayor Kent says, "will NOT lower its standards of quality."

The depression in the shoe trade began to be felt in Brockton in the Spring of 1920, when the embargo upon freight suddenly was followed by a flood of cancellations. Latterly, for a number of weeks, shoe workers in some cases have considered themselves fortunate when they have been employed five half-days in the week.

The blow that fell upon the industry in 1920 was the protest of the buying public against what it called "profiteering." In reality, it was a movement to squeeze unnecessary costs out of merchandise, to try to equalize the earnings of the factory worker with the earnings of farmers and clerks and workers of all other classes, who found themselves unable to buy what they needed from the incomes they received. The liquidation has been accomplished, but it has taken time to dispose of the stocks of shoes and leather in the hands of retailers, wholesalers and manufacturers and to accommodate business to the new development.

Some idea of the grit and gumption of this Quality Town of the shoe world may be gained from the report that within the past week Brockton High School graduated 370 students, the largest class in its history.

Another record will be broken in September, when the enrollment of freshmen is expected to reach 1,100. And Brockton High School, be it known, GRADUATES more pupils in proportion to population than any other high school in the country!

Brockton, in fine, has been made a good place in which to LIVE as well as a good place in which to EARN a living. The city thinks in terms of the community as well as in terms of the individual.

A Community Enterprise

Recent demonstrations of the capacity of Brockton folk to work shoulder to shoulder in the common cause were the Community Chest campaign of November last and the establishment by the Manufacturers' Association, in co-operation with the Chamber of Commerce, of the Brockton and South Shore Shoe Magazine. Today's illustration, the work of Ralph Heard, is a reproduction of the front cover of that publication.

The magazine, sent bi-monthly to 20,000 retailers, jobbers and shoe manufacturers, is a co-operative movement, with no possible profit for anyone. The board of governors is made up of representatives of the Shoe Manufacturers' Association and the Chamber of Commerce. President Arthur J. Chase of the chamber, a member of the George E. Keith organization, is chairman of the board.

There is no editor, but there are scores of contributing editors: among them W. T. Card and President Harold C. Keith of the George E. Keith Shoe Company; President John S. Kent of the Manufacturers, who is treasurer of the M. A. Packard Shoe Company, and George B. Hendrick of the Douglas Company.

There is no handsomer "trade" publication in the United States, and the Brockton and South Shore Shoe Magazine is a credit not only to the communities it speaks for—the Abingtons, Avon, the Braintrees, the Bridgewaters, Brockton, the Eastons, the Hanovers, Holbrook, Middleboro, Randolph, Rockland, Stoughton, the Weymouths and Whitman—but to the great organizations which stand behind it, to Secretaries John F. Riley, Harold A. Hood and Rebecca S. Brown of the Chamber of Commerce—the young lady capably acts the part of publisher—and to Secretary Frank M. Bump of the Brockton Manufacturers' Association.

November's community appeal was for $160,000, with which to care for the less fortunate of the older folk of the city and provide recreation and guidance for the rising generation.

Coming—"Citizens' Day"

The call came at a time when almost any New England shoe centre might have been forgiven for offering a thousand alibis, but in Brockton executive and clerk, manufacturer and shoe worker labored side by side for seven busy days to such good effect that the required amount was raised in full.

On June 30 Brockton again will be mustered in full community strength, this time for the purpose of receiving and welcoming 150 newly naturalized citizens into the life of city and nation.

There will be 10,000 marchers in a parade of all the patriotic, fraternal, religious and service organizations in the district. "Citizens' Day," the promoters are calling the unique festival, and at the Fair Grounds late in the afternoon the principal address will be delivered by the Honorable James J. Davis, Secretary of Labor in President Coolidge's Cabinet.

Mayor William A. Bullivant, Mr. Harold C. Keith, Mr. Edward Signor, Mr. John F. Long and other representative citizens active in the promotion of Citizens' Day hold that brotherhood and co-operation are, after all, the only things that can weld our people together and unify the nation.

If this is not the work and the program of Minute Men, what else is it?

But in Brockton we find ourselves, once again, in the home of some of the original Minute Men.

So reads one of the commemorative tablets in the rotunda of Brockton's impressive City Hall, a reminder of the company of Minute Men—Captain Josiah Hayden's company in Colonel Bailey's regiment—which set out for Boston on the Nineteenth of April, in '75. There were six Packards in the troop, and three Ameses, and among other familiar names those of Thayer, Washburn, Warren, Keith, Howard, Field, Beals and Gurney.

A part of Bridgewater for 237 years, the only thing Brockton ever got by accident was her name.

How that came about, fifty-four years ago, after "Standish" and "Stanton" and "Amburg" and "Avon" and "Allerton" had been seriously considered and one after another dropped, and how finally Ira Copeland remembered that on a trip to Detroit he had passed through Brockton, Ontario, and how this name finally received 1,080 out of 1,491 votes, must some day be a story by itself.

"A MAKER OF BEAUTIFUL THINGS"

"A maker of beautiful things because that which he fashioned was useful, and every useful thing is beautiful.

"A maker of beautiful things because his handiwork reflected care, thought, skill and a love for and devotion to the craft to which he gave his best; a craft whose reputation he ever jealously guarded.

"A faithful, friendly, conscientious man, never tolerating compromise to expediency or permitting any lowering of standards.

"This man and his work are of another time than ours.

"But the master craftsman of yesterday still lives. He lives in the ideals which he received from those who were his preceptors and which he, in turn, passed on to those who came after him; ideals which have been kept sacred by father and son to the present moment.

"Because of these men and these ideals Brockton and South Shore factories have been known for many generations as institutions where the craftsmanship spirit is a dominating influence.

"Brockton and South Shore craftsmen of the present generation, worthy sons of honored sires, keenly realize that they have a tradition to maintain; a tradition that is at once their pride and their glory."
